"The Crucible"
Broadway Matinée
Wed., April 17th
$130 pp.

This drama takes place during the Salem Witch Trials of the 17th century. A whole Massachusetts town is put on trial for witchcraft due to the frightened lies of a young woman. The work is playwright Arthur Miller's allegory of Senator Joseph McCarthy's anticommunist "witchhunts" of the 1950s. Starring Liam Neeson, Laura Linney, Brian Murray and Anne Pitoniak. Package includes orchestra ticket, lunch at Giambelli's 50th Restaurant and round-trip transportation.

"The Graduate"
Broadway Matinée
Wed., April 27th
$130 pp.

This drama was adapted from the hit 1967 movie, which was directed by Mike Nichols and starred Dustin Hoffman and Anne Bancroft. The play concerns a recent college graduate who is trying to find his way in the world. His joyless affair with the older, married Mrs. Robinson complicates his budding relationship with her daughter Elaine. Starring Kathleen Turner, Jason Biggs and Alicia Silverstone. Package includes orchestra ticket; lunch at La Petite Auberge Restaurant and round-trip transportation.

Ambassador Service

between NY and the Hamptons begins Easter Weekend.

When it comes to personal comfort and convenience, there's no better travel choice than Ambassador Class Service from Hampton Jitney. Designed for travel with style and space in mind, Ambassador Class offers these benefits: far fewer seats than a standard coach, both front to back and side to side, for lots of individual leg, hip and elbow room; leather "captain's chairs" for comfort; individualized audio system and a wider choice of entertainment; a variety of complimentary beverages, snacks and reading material; an on-board attendant to help make your travel a pleasant experience every step of the way. Service between the Hamptons and New York will return for a 2nd season, operating spring to fall in 2002, coinciding with seasonal demand. Service begins Easter weekend (March 28-April 1). Regularly scheduled service will begin soon thereafter.

Service between
Metro NY and Florida
begins this Spring.

Ambassador Class "Southern Service" begins this Spring as well, so whether you're heading east, west, north or south, experience the finest in passenger travel with Hampton Jitney. Not just luxury service... Ambassador Service.

The Down Factory Store

www.downfactorystore.com

Thanks to our retail and "online" customers we are one of the largest resources for goose down comforters, pillows and featherbeds. Consumers that compare our quality and prices to those of department stores, discounters, catalogs and other web sites find that we are indeed unbeatable - and we guarantee that! Know the facts of down before you buy.

FACT: Down comes from the chest of the bird to keep it insulated from the weather. Feathers (those things with quills) come from the back of the bird to keep it dry. Down can cost as much as $10.00 an ounce, feathers 10¢ an ounce. Over 90% of down manufacturers find it to their advantage to add over 30% feathers to their down. It's like buying three pounds of ground sirloin and getting two pounds of meat and one pound of fat. You have paid for meat and got fat, it's the same with their down, they both do it because it's legal. We do not contaminate our down by adding feathers to it.

KNOW THE FACTS BEFORE YOU BUY IT

FACT: Fill power, this is the amount the cubic inches filled by one ounce of down. Higher fill power means a higher quality down. You will find that as the quality of the down increases, so does the comfort & life of the item.

FACT: We use only high thread count, baffle box construction, 100% cotton covers on our down comforters & pillows. Down insulates by trapping air and holding in your body temperature, keeping you comfortable through the night. Low quality comforters are usually heavier because it takes more of an inferior down to fill a comforter. Inferior down becomes clumpy and it can't breathe, resulting in your becoming over heated and uncomfortable. Our high quality down gives you the warmth and comfort without the weight.

FACT: In all likelihood you will have your comforter longer than the car you are now driving.

"We go the distance for you."

The Key Of Train

A Brilliant Idea Toots Through For The Hamptons Music Festival

By Dan Rattiner

I was at the Yama-Q Restaurant in Bridgehampton the other day, having lunch with Richard Adler, the composer of the Broadway shows Damn Yankees and Pajama Game, when we got to talking about the Hamptons Music Festival that takes place here in Bridgehampton every July. For some years, the festival took place under a series of tents near Dune Alpin Farm in East Hampton. But now they hold it under tents in a field off Snake Hollow Road next to the railroad tracks in Bridgehampton, adjacent to the Hampton Classic Horse Show grounds. The festival lasts an entire week. And periodically, often during a performance, a Long Island Railroad train will come roaring by. These are the only tracks on the South Fork between Manhattan and Montauk.

What we talked about, Richard and I, was an idea I had about whether the rhythm of the train and the sound of the whistle could be incorporated into a performance. As honorary chairman of the event, Richard is familiar with everything. And he was completely against the idea. Some of the world's great classical musicians perform here — Byron Janis, Lukas Foss, Itzhak Perlman. Was I serious? Even half serious?

I absolutely was serious, I told him. The music festival is successful, but it is not nearly as successful as the horse show, which takes place next door the last week in August. Think of the publicity that would come to the music festival if they could incorporate a train. It could be good for the railroad, too. Imagine.

"All you'd have to do," I told him, "is convert a classical piece into the Key of Train. That could be done. Record the train whistle. Find the note. It could be a piano concerto. Just raise it up to that key."

"You can't just take a Mozart string quartet and change the key," he said. He was incredulous. He had stopped eating.

of Number 49." Think of the cannons booming in the "1812 Overture." And it doesn't have to be in the key of Train. The pitch of the train whistle would just have to fit in. It could be a fifth. Or a third. How about something popular from the Forties. The "Chattanooga Choo Choo."

The more I thought about it, the more I thought this was a great idea. Adler had stopped eating altogether.

"And this would be so easy to set up. You could do it with cell phones."

As a matter of fact, there was a considerable precedent for doing this. I had once orchestrated the train into the Dan's Papers Potatomampton Minithon 10K running race years ago. In that first year, twenty-eight years ago, the race started in the Bridgehampton Shopping Center and went up Snake Hollow Road, east on Scuttlehole, south on Hayground, and then across the railroad tracks, across Montauk Highway and down into the potato fields of Sagaponack. The finish line — and we had 350 runners that first year — was right on Dan's Papers front lawn.

"Nobody knew about running races back then," I said. "So it crossed the railroad tracks. So what? It didn't even measure 10k. It was a sort of 9 1/2k."

"Maybe there IS a classical piece that incorporates a train," I said. And of course I knew as soon as I said it how stupid this was.

"Maybe there IS a classical piece that incorporates a train," I said. And of course I knew as soon as I said it how stupid this was. Most classical pieces were composed before 1850. There were no trains before 1850.

"Or something from country and western. Or from bluegrass. The "Wabash Cannonball." Or the "Wreck

There are all kinds of records that are broken, but this one goes in the record book. Beatlemania strikes again. Amagansett's Paul McCartney will be starting his first concert tour in America since 1993 at the Continental Airlines Arena in East Rutherford, N.J. on April 17. Tickets sales for his Toronto concert last week sold out the 15,000 seat arena in 30 minutes. You can also catch him at Madison Square Garden on the 26. Isn't there something comforting to know that that magic is still there?

Peter Jennings and Tom Brokaw are known for their professionalism in reporting the news. To be able to read their personal accounts from the 9/11 tragedy in the new book Covering Catastrophe is remarkable. The book features many of our finest broadcasting journalists and the reporting that ensued after the explosion. Royalties from this book will be donated to 9/11 charities.

One thing you can count on is if Marty Richards is behind it, is a great production. Whether it is a great summer party for charity here in Southampton or a new play on Broadway, Marty's magic touch is ever so present. Congrats on the Broadway opening of your new play Sweet Smell of Success last week. We know success is once again in the air for you.

With Oscars and our summer season right around the corner, we couldn't help but think what kind of gift bag would the Oscars would offer compared to the goodie bags offered at our events this summer. Comparison list would run like this. We give you a baseball cap or tee shirt...they give you a $5,000 diamond studded bra. We give you a key chain...they give you a cashmere robe. We give you a book...they give you a trip to a luxury spa weekend for two. We give you a lipstick...they give you a complete Estee Lauder product line. Hmm...okay, so maybe it wasn't a good idea...never mind.

Great shot of Steven Spielberg and wife Kate Capshaw with son, Sawyer in the Daily News. For their son's 10th birthday party they went to see Seigfried and Roy's big cats in Las Vegas. Their expressions created all the great elements of a Spielberg movie....amazement, delight and fear.

Tickets, Signs, Inspection Stickers And Parking In East Hampton

By Dan Rattiner

A couple of weeks ago, on a Wednesday, I parked my car on the north side of Main Street in East Hampton beyond the Jitney stop, got on the Jitney, and went into New York. I went with Cat, who met me with her car at the Jitney stop and did the same thing. We returned on Thursday afternoon and boy did we have a big surprise. Between us there were four tickets on our windshields. The total cost to pay them all was between three and four hundred dollars.

Two of them were for an expired registration and inspection, which we had clearly forgotten to take care of. We had no defense for that. The other two were for parking illegally. Specifically, the tickets, one on her car and one on mine, said that we had been found parking there at 3:30 on Thursday morning. And we were not allowed to do that.

I remembered vaguely that there is a law in East Hampton Village that says you cannot leave your car out on any street overnight, but when it was put into effect years ago, the idea was that it would only be enforced during snow removal operations. Certainly it has only been enforced sparingly. A sign about this ordinance is posted at the entrances to the village on Route 112 and at both ends of Montauk Highway, but if memory serves it was actually only enforceable if signs were also put up on the street nearby where it was otherwise legal to park. People are used to obeying parking signs, but only as they apply to the immediate hundred yards or so in either direction, after which there should be another sign.

Indeed, there is only one-hour parking in the commercial area of Main Street in East Hampton and this is clearly posted, right up to the Jitney stop, after which, just to the west, there is one last sign, with the arrow pointing in one direction only, east, saying one-hour parking. Beyond this sign, for a mile along the residential part of Main Street, all the way to Town Pond, there are no other signs restricting parking at all. We had parked beyond this last sign.

Given the money involved, I decided to wait for the court date, go there and see what I could do.

stop. Many people park to the west of the Jitney stop. There is no signage there," I said.

"Yes, there are signs," he said. "They're little ones. Under the main signs. We just put them up this summer."

"I don't believe so," I said.

I went back out on the street and drove the one mile again, from the last sign with the arrow pointing east, to Town Pond. No little signs.

Just before court goes into session, everybody gets a chance to meet with the assistant district attorney to see if a reduced arrangement can be agreed upon. I showed him the updated inspection and registration. He said they could dismiss one but not both. I'd have to pay eighty-five dollars. I showed him the two parking tickets and explained that there were no signs except at the entrances to the village.

"We throw tickets out if there are no signs on the street where the violation takes place, regardless of what the signs say at the entrances to the village."

"Let me drive you over there," I said. "I can show you there are no signs. Can you get free for five minutes?"

He looked around. I had waited to be the last person to see him. He spoke briefly to the judge. Then he came back to me. "Let's go," he said.

This was a real treat. Me and the assistant district attorney on a mission to drive from the

In the meantime, we got Cat's registration and insurance stickers up to date. I had copies of them with me to bring to court along with the tickets.

Also during this interval, I visited Larry Cantwell, the village manager, about the matter.

"I often have parked here to the west of the Jitney court to Main Street and back to look at parking signs. It's a mile each way.

"I know people who live in East Hampton who have never been to New York City," I said. "Maybe there are people who have never even left East Hampton. They would never see the signs at the entrances to the village. You have to be coming IN to the village to read them."

"In your dreams," he said. "But if they're not on Main Street, we will throw these tickets out."

As we drove down Main Street passing the movie theater, I saw there were indeed little signs. My heart sank. Perhaps Cantwell had had them put up since our tickets were issued. Indeed, these signs, right on the commercial part of Main Street, were on both the north and south sides. But then we got past all the stores to where the Jitney stop is on the north side and the Presbyterian Church is on the south side, and it was a different story. On the north side, where we had parked, there were no little no parking signs at all. We drove the mile from the Jitney stop to Town Pond. No little signs.

"You are right," he said.

We turned around at Town Pond, and there, on the south side, by Guild Hall, there WERE signs. And there were signs at 200-yard intervals all the way back to the traffic light at the center of town. It was as if some highway department people, after they were handed 40 signs and told to put them up, had started at Town Pond on the south side heading east, then, at the traffic light, they crossed the street to the north side, put more little no parking signs up on Main Street in front of the stores and then had run out of them just before the Jitney stop.

"We recommend the two parking tickets be dismissed because there are no signs where they parked," the DA told the judge when we got back, "and I have seen that both the registration and inspection have been renewed on the car with those tickets and so we drop one and he pleads guilty to the other."

"Eighty-five dollars," the judge said.

East Hampton Village has many problems at the present time, some of which are difficult to deal with and others that are easy to solve. This parking problem is really quite easy. Just send out the highway department people to space out the 40 little signs. Or order 10 more to finish the job. In the present situation, it certainly is annoying to have to go through this experience because of this inaction. It's as annoying as parking your car and coming back to find it disabled by a metal boot locked on the tires, something else that outrages the citizenry and needs to be dealt with. But there it is. And as I write this, two months later, the signs on the north side still are not up. And there is nothing in the works to deal with the car booting.

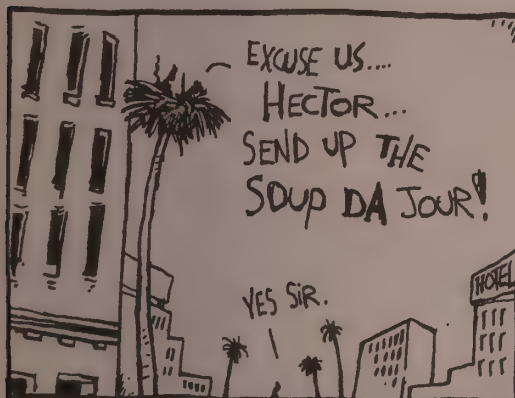

It is now the beginning of March. Even at this late date, there is time to deal with these situations before Memorial Day.

I know it is not easy to run a village. Maybe the Ladies Village Improvement Society, a moral force in this town, which has often dealt with problems of inaction in the past, could step in.

Things need to be done. Nothing is. And soon it will be the summer season again. •

How Some Rebels In Afghanistan Changed The Course Of Dan's Papers

By Dan Rattiner

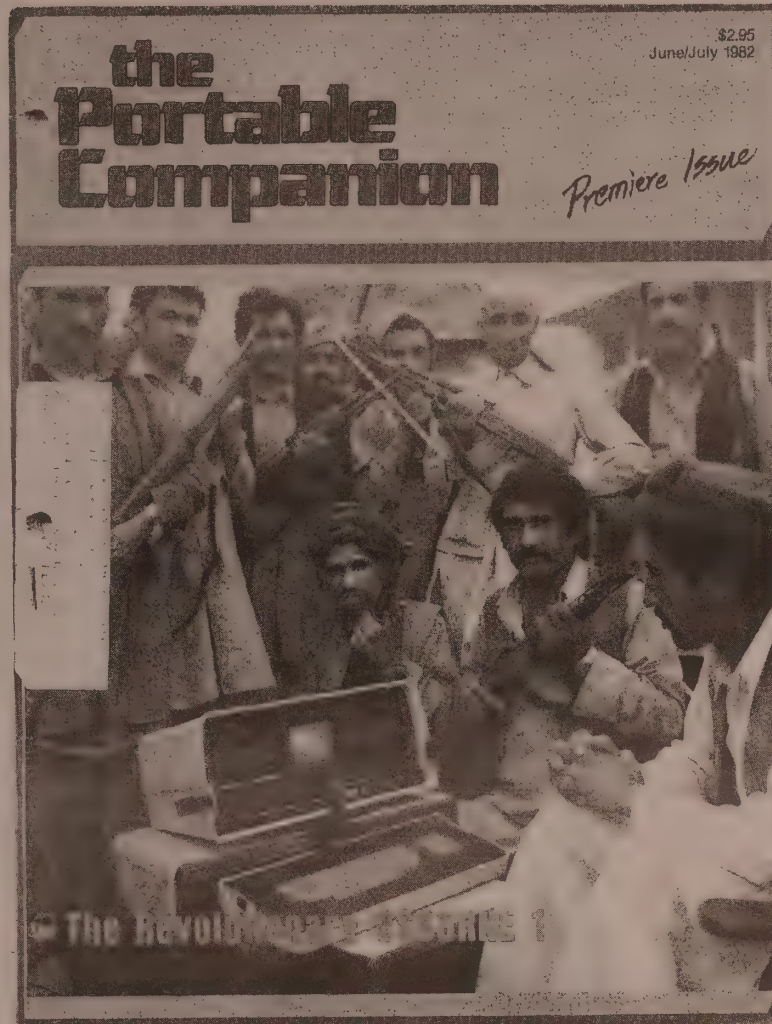

No, the contraption you are looking at in the photograph above on the cover of a magazine is not a nuclear bomb or some other evil device of mass destruction. What it is, however, is something very familiar, or what should be very familiar, and it is an example of how things change and how things remain the same.

A reporter from the Chicago Sun-Times, David Kline, was sent to Afghanistan to cover the war. He arrived at the Pakistani border with this object, showed his credentials, and went to a rebel-controlled town inside Afghanistan. Here, surrounded by Taliban freedom fighters, he set his contraption on a table, opened it, lowered one end of it — the keyboard — onto a bench, and invited some of the guys around so he could take their picture with it. He would write his story on the keyboard. The words would appear on the tiny, tiny screen you see in the center, he would save them to a floppy disk the size of a small dinner plate, and, before closing the contraption up, he would send his story, by phone modem, to an editor in Chicago. The year is 1981. The Taliban soldiers, who were our friends, were fighting the Soviets. And what you are looking at is the world's first portable computer. As for the magazine, it is the premiere edition of a publication for users of this first "laptop," published by the makers of it. The contraption is the Osborne I.

As some people may know, I write this newspaper while on the beach. I go down to the beach most afternoons. I use a laptop. On nice days I sit outside on a folding chair writing while I enjoy the sun and sea. On not so nice days I sit in the passenger seat of my four-wheel-drive Lincoln Navigator, often parked near some surfcasters. When I am done writing — a session usually lasts an hour and a half — I go home, or I go back to the office. At both these establishments I hook up my laptop to a modem and e-mail the story to the main production computer (the server) at Dan's Papers. I call it "securing" my work, as in if I don't do this and the laptop gets stepped on by an elephant, I've wasted the day's writing.

I recently found this magazine with the picture and the caption, THE REVOLUTIONARY OSBORNE 1 under it, on a bookshelf in the living room at my house. I have saved this magazine all this time and I think it is fair to say this magazine had a profound influence on my life from the first day that I saw it.

Up until then, articles for Dan's Papers were written on electric typewriters, the letters printing out keystroke by keystroke on a piece of paper, which was then cut up and pasted into place on a piece of cardboard. Each piece of cardboard was a page of the newspaper. Through a complicated process, that cardboard, and however many pages of cardboards that the paper was, could be printed by the thousands, could be working on making it into thousands and thousands of copies of Dan's Papers.

A little history might be in order here. In 1979, just two years earlier, President Jimmy Carter had announced that the American Olympic Team, all these young men and women who had trained so hard to compete for medals in track, swimming, diving and high jumping, would not be going to the Olympic Games because the games would be taking place in Moscow. Moscow had ordered the invasion of Afghanistan. The Soviets were trying to conquer the world. This would show them.

The following year, the American public failed to re-elect Jimmy Carter.

In 1980, there was no such thing as a portable computer, even computers that weighed as little as a portable Singer Sewing Machine, which this one did. Computers were huge, cumbersome things that filled a laboratory. Very few of them alike, and, as a matter of fact, there were very few of them at all. There was also very little software to run these computers in 1980. Back then, you'd hire a software expert to come and write the code for your computer to get it to do what you wanted it to. On the other hand, there were, by that year, primitive software programs on a disk you could buy. One was a word processor called Wordstar, another was a spreadsheet called Visicalc, and the third was an information-sorting program called DBase.

What Adam Osborne, the inventor of the Osborne I, did, was to bundle together Wordstar, Visicalc and DBase into a bunch of big floppy disks, hire somebody to build a miniature computer the size of a suitcase with a handle on the top, and then put them the whole thing up for sale. I bought nine of them.

I had an idea. It didn't quite work out for one reason or another, but I thought that with the Osborne I and the modem, we could build an empire of Dan's Papers all over the world. Why not? Dan's Papers worked in the Hamptons. Why not any beachside vacation community? We could make the central office right here where it was (and is now) in Bridgehampton. And I could write stories about beach life that could be used in any beach town newspaper, and then I could send them out on the modems. Conversely, any editor at any of the other "Dan's Papers" could write a story and send it into the central office where we would network it out to everybody else. There was no Internet at the time with which to do this. But there was, I learned, something called MCI Mail. It was an electronic mailbox you could set up with MCI. You bundled and distributed. That's how you got Dan's Papers. I'd been doing this for more than twenty years.

Then I saw an amazing thing. You type things down anywhere you wanted, Hong Kong, the South Pole or Afghanistan, send it into a central office in Chicago (could be Bridgehampton), and an instant later they could modem something into it. Then from somewhere else, somebody could modem that thing out of it. All everybody had to have was the right password. For $11 a month you could sign up and MCI Mail sent you a bunch of big floppy disks that allowed you to access your mailbox. We did this. Frankly, I thought this too was amazing.

On the contents page of this PORTABLE COMPANION magazine is the following message, in little tiny print, from the publishers.

"The Portable Companion is published bimonthly by Osborne Computer Corporation as an aid in helping Osborne I owners understand and use their computers."

This gives you a rough idea of how clueless everyone was at this time about using computers of any kind for any purpose.

So I bought nine Osborne Is. And I put an ad in the paper. RUN YOUR OWN DAN'S PAPERS it said. I invited people to drop whatever it was they were doing, call me, and I would give them the tools (the Osborne I) and the expertise to start a newspaper in any resort anywhere in the world. I included in the ad that famous quote from the movie Citizen Kane. Orson Welles, who played a character based on newspaperman Randolph Hearst, a tycoon who had assembled more than 100 newspapers around the country, had this to say.

"I think," Orson Welles said, "it would be fun to run a newspaper."

Well, I tried. At one point, I had arrangements with people in Nantucket, Martha's Vineyard, Daytona Beach, Marco Island (Fla.), Maui (Hi.), Block Island, Fire Island and Cape Cod. The project happened so quickly and was so successful that trying to start them all up at the same time nearly drove me into bankruptcy. I'd get a phone call.

"What about London?" somebody asked.

"London is not a beach town," I'd say.

I'd get another phone call.

"We're sending you six articles," an editor from Marco Island would say. And we'd dial up MCI Mail, type in the password and download all these files from our mailbox, which, in my mind, was located in a stationary satellite high above Nebraska.

All this lasted about a year before it became clear that the whole idea was way beyond my personal resources. But boy, was it fun while it lasted.

At the time, I remember, I bought a Volkswagen Camper Bus, the kind with the popup roof, a sink, refrigerator, dining room table you could set up, fold out bed and curtains on the windows.

I'd drive to the back of the beach. I'd leave the engine on and plug the Osborne into a cigarette lighter adapter, set it on the dining table, and I'd write, with the surf banging away in front of me, and the people showing up to go to the beach behind me. Perhaps, if what I wrote passed muster with the various editors, my work would appear in newspapers around the country. I have been doing this, gloriously, ever since, though just for the paper here in the Hamptons.

The laptops have grown smaller. The Taliban have grown beards and become our enemy. A week ago they announced they aren't making Volkswagen Vanagons anymore.

The surf, the sand and the seagulls, however, stay exactly the same.

The Time Machine

Two Hairy Thumbs Down For This 9000 Year History Of New York City

By Dan Rattiner

We saw The Time Machine starring Guy Pearce at the East Hampton Cinema the other night. The special effects were great. The time machine goes off into the future and comes back to the past and so forth and so on just like in the book it is based on. But there are big problems.

Anyway, here's the plot. At the beginning of the movie we are in Central Park in Manhattan in 1890 on a snowy winter evening. There are twinkly lights and sleigh bells, carriages pulled by horses clip clopping off from taxi stands to take the well to do to Fifth Avenue or Bleeker Street. There are people sledding, ice skaters swirling around and men selling chestnuts over an open fire.

Into this scene comes an attractive young man and woman. He is Guy Pearce, a really good-looking guy. She reminds me of someone I know, Roy Scheider's wife Brenda only it's not her, just like her. Guy takes out a diamond ring, proposes to her, she accepts and suddenly a robber appears, snatches the ring, there is a struggle, she is stabbed with a knife by the robber and dies. The robber runs off. Guy is distraught.

He is so distraught that he goes back to the laboratory where he works and commences to build a time machine out of glass lenses, leather pulleys, iron wheels and various other spare parts with the intention of going back to the park, taking her somewhere else — McDougal Street for instance — and proposing to her there. He will change the course of history. An admirable idea indeed.

It takes him four years, but, in secret, Guy builds it. It looks like a moon lander. He sits in it, shifts it into gear with what looks very much like a manual transmission stick shift and heads back. Arriving, he finds her in the park, whisks her off protesting — what is this all about, what are you doing? — and goes quickly to McDougal Street where he proceeds to go into a flower shop in order to get her some flowers to accompany the ring he will shortly give her. She stays outside as she's been told to do. He said he wants to surprise her. And while he is inside picking out roses, a horse carriage goes out of control and falls over, crushing her. When Guy arrives with his flowers, there she is, dead again.

Now our hero is doubly distraught. And he decides he should go back even farther if he is to save her. But he overshoots. There is this brass device with a changing date on it next to the gearshift and when he gets to where he is going neither of them are even born. Then he goes back toward the future and overshoots, this time arriving in New York — keep in mind that where from The Lion King. Our hero is in a bed. He's wounded and on a wicker table next to him are his clothes from 1890 all cleaned and pressed good as new. The beautiful young woman, nursing him, is wiping his brow and so forth, and is the only person there who speaks English. She's a real knockout, has no boyfriend but does have a fetching eight-year-old son. The explanation as to why she speaks English is that she is a language teacher. There is a new star on the Hollywood horizon. Her name, in real life, is Samantha Mumba. You know where this is going.

Now our hero, after getting dressed again in his white shirt, wool pants and suspenders, finds that these people living in the forest of what was New York City, have a problem. At night, they live in cocoon-shaped houses that are attached to the sides of the canyon walls, neither up in the forest or down on the river. Why? There's things that come out at night, big half human monsters, that shoot darts into them, drag them off and then take them down into special quicksand where they disappear, never to be seen again.

Guy... runs to his time machine, shifts into first and, exhausted, goes even further into the future. This time, he FALLS ASLEEP AT THE WHEEL.

he remains the same but everything changes around him — to around 2150 when some businessmen have built a colony under the surface of the moon where people are invited to live, but where everything has gone horribly wrong. New York is a disaster area. The whole place is being evacuated. When the businessmen dug the hole in the moon they broke it. The moon is going to crash to the earth. There are flashing lights, police radios, sirens. You look up. There it is, oversize, with big cracks in it like you'd see in a broken mirror. This is terrible. The police try to arrest Guy for not evacuating New York within the prescribed time frame, but he breaks free, runs to his time machine, shifts into first and, exhausted, goes even further into the future. This time, he FALLS ASLEEP AT THE WHEEL.

Machine (Continued from previous page)

Sure enough, night comes and the monsters, who look something like the aliens Sigourney Weaver fought a decade ago, but bigger and bucktoothed, attack. No contest. Everybody runs away including the hero. And, after a struggle, off they go with Samantha Mumba, over to the sand pit and down under the ground.

Our hero, of course, goes after her, Indiana Jones fashion, down the wall of the cliff face to an opening into the underground caves, accompanied by the eight-year-old son who has refused to stay home. After hiding behind rocks to avoid some monsters chatting away as they hop along the path, Guy and the boy sneak down a series of crudely built underground cave corridors looking for Samantha.

It is at this point that it occurred to both Cathie and me that there is a lot seriously wrong with this movie. First of all, there's been about half an hour that have passed since Guy woke up and he has made no effort to relocate his time machine. We had seen where it had stopped, deep in the jungle, several miles from where the nice people revive him. Now I don't know about you, but when I park my car, I ALWAYS make note of where I left it. Also, I look at the signs to see how long I can park it there. Our hero is acting as if he arrived there on the subway.

And what about the woman he was proposing to in 1890? I mean, the man was DISTRAUGHT. He was focused on this one gorgeous woman to save her. Now he's off chasing another woman.

Has this man got a memory problem?

He HAD made a comment, after she was killed for the second time that he must be going about changing the future the wrong way and all he was going to accomplish was to keep coming back and getting her killed again in still another painful way, but he was determined to keep at it with his time machine to try other ways.

I imagined, in Hollywood, in a smoke filled room, somebody suggesting he go back a THIRD time and she gets knocked off by an escaped lion from the Central Park Zoo and everybody just shakes their heads and says two is enough already and the audience gets the picture.

Anyway, let's go back to the movie. Here they are, the hero and the boy, running along underground corridors avoiding these half human monsters and they come into — of course — the villain's lair. He's not a half human monster. He is a man who looks almost exactly what Andy Warhol would look like had he lived to be seventy. Long straight white hair. White complexion, lipstick and eye shadow. No, not Andy Warhol, maybe an old rocker, like somebody from KISS.

We find the villain alone (who needs bodyguards when you're so powerful?), sitting at a mahogany desk, looking out at a cage inside of which is, you guessed it, Samantha.

At this point, the villain makes the standard mistake that all villains make in movies where they know they have won, which is to savor the moment, gloat and explain everything to the hero so he can see how smart he, the villain, is.

The human race, a thousand years before (maybe 8000 a.d.) suffered a huge natural catastrophe with the moon. Some humans survived to live on nuts and berries in the jungle above. Others were driven underground, where they survive by poison darting those above, dragging them down below and killing them and eating them, or as in the case of Samantha, using them for breeding purposes. (A lesson for us all. Its better to be good looking.)

Needless to say, Guy lunges at the villain, they fight, Guy wins, and he, Samantha and the boy run off into the caves looking for a way to the surface before everything blows up.

One interesting scene here is of the half human monsters sweating and grunting as they operate what looks like a primitive coal fired underground power plant to light and heat their world. Guy, Samantha and the boy run by unnoticed and I thought — shouldn't the HUMANS be doing the grunt work with the half humans having the whips? No? Anyway, our three heroes get up to the surface of the earth just in time to watch the earth split open in the valley below so you can see all the underground caves catching fire and burning everything up. And that's it. A couple of good hot cracks in a valley and we can assume that an entire race of sub-humans on the planet have been wiped out.

Needless to say, all the face painted natives standing around up there are mighty happy. And Guy, Samantha and the boy go off arm in arm. The camera pans up and there are the pieces of the moon sort of bunched together. Hey, it never did crash to earth. Broke yes, but it's still up there. The hero announces that he thinks he'll stay. The hell with his time machine wherever it is. End of movie.

I give the special effects three and a half stars. I give everything else half a star. Don't bother with this.

At The Benefit

So The Buddhist Monk Says "Why Not, You Only Live Once"

By Joshua May

I had the perfect punch line but nobody knew the joke. I was at the Tibet House Benefit, a rather swanky affair, comprised of a concert (performances by David Bowie, Bebel Gilberto, Philip Glass, Patti Smith, Adam Yauch, Nawang Kechog and the Drepung Gomang Monks), which was followed by a dinner (chicken, salmon, salad, a pasta dish doing an admirable impression of an Alfredo and dessert) all to the tune of $400-a-head. I had no business being there — I hadn't paid — but I am blessed by having a few well-connected friends, one of whom was able to get me into the dinner, but not the concert. No big deal, I never complain about free food and wine and I was just hoping to have a few interesting conversations.

The punch line came to me as I stood sipping a glass of wine and surveying the crowd. It was: So the Buddhist monk says, "Why not, you only live once." This, I thought, was a great punch line, utterly appropriate for the event. Problem was, I had no idea what the joke was. Maybe, a priest, a rabbi and a monk are standing at the top of a mountain. The priest says... what? I had no idea what the priest would say. At the same time, I couldn't let this event-appropriate punch line go to waste. I scanned the room.

The dinner was at the Hammerstein Ballroom, a space that I had only seen decked out for rock concerts and raves, but on Friday evening the room was filled with candles, long black and purple drapes cascaded from the ceiling and red and orange table clothes adding a splash of color to older men in expensive suits and young women with dreadlocks and everyone in between. I overheard someone postulate that no more than three percent of the crowd had been to Tibet, but nevertheless they were all there to support the occupied land and its displaced people.

The Tibet House "is dedicated to the proposition that the wisdom and arts of all human civilizations vitally enrich the emerging global culture." This broad belief is further refined by "a special concern for Tibet, its people, its spectacular highlands and its civilization of extraordinary wisdom and beauty." The physical application of these goals is manifested by the Tibet House Cultural Center with its gallery, library and archives in the West Village. It is a well-known and widely supported group that counts movie stars, rock stars and every brand of mover and shaker among its constituency. And so it was into this throng of the socially the otherwise dark dress of the attendees. Tibetan prayer flags, their bright swatches of blue, yellow and red, were strung across the foyer and a lively and convivial buzz filled the enormous room. The crowd defied reduction; there were distinguished and culturally conscious that I wandered.

It was one of those evenings when a few glasses of wine had coincided with my desire to talk to anyone about everything. In such a state of mind,

I decided to go looking for the joke and I was quite confident that someone in the crowd would have my missing lines.

I began by working my table as I picked over a plate of salmon and salad. I was seated next to an East Hamptonite, an older, distinguished looking gent and we began a quasi-philosophical conversation that rapidly led to my query about whether he might know the joke for my punch line. He didn't, but we had an enjoyable conversation nonetheless. I next turned to the others at the table, it happened to be Bebel Gilberto and her band, all of whom are from Brazil, and again offered the punch line. It was met with blank stares.

Completely nonplussed — I didn't for a moment think I should perhaps cease and desist in my line of questioning — I turned to a group of young women sitting behind me and again posed my punch line. This time I was met with bemused looks (at least I hope they were bemused looks because otherwise they were looks of disgust, which I misinterpreted). A few moments of banter ensued, but still no joke. I suppose a lack of positive responses by this point should have suggested that I was just being an idiot, but I was convinced that this was a good punch line and, frankly, I was in a mood to be dismissed and rebuked repeatedly for my own entertainment.

The process was repeated a few times and as the crowd began to thin I realized that I might not find a joke. It was also at this point that I saw Dr. Robert Thurman, a noted Buddhist and Tibetan scholar, who also happens to be Uma's dad. Lacking any sense of self-censorship I decided, why not, if anyone will know the joke, it will probably be him. I approached him and stood by silently for a moment as he finished a conversation and he then turned towards me and gave me an appraising and earnest look. I leapt.

"I have a punch line, but I don't know what the joke is," I blurted out. This statement was met with silence. "The punch line is: the Buddhist monk says, 'why not, you only live once.'" Again silence. "Do you know what the joke is?"

"A Buddhist monk would never say that," he replied after a moment.

"I know, that's why it's the punch line," I said.

A grunt ensued and that was it, he turned and walked away. Apparently, the punch line wasn't so great. Apparently, I was the joke.

Train (Continued from page 13)

Crossing the tracks and crossing the highway were just two problems to be solved. The highway problem turned out to be the easiest. The Southampton Town Police simply closed it, in both directions, for however long it took for all the runners to get across. As for the railroad, I had in the race instructions a rule that if the gate was down or you saw a train or even heard a train whistle, you had to stop and wait. I then called the railroad. They were most cooperative. Turned out there was a train coming through at that hour. But the railroad would make the engineer aware of the situation, and they would have him blow his horn loud and for a long time before he got to Hayground Road.

"I even stayed right there at the railroad tracks to see that the people obeyed this rule," I told Adler. "The whistle sounded and the gate came down. They all just stood there and jogged in place. Today, with cell phones, we could easily coordinate the train with a performance at the music festival. The engineer could arrive EXACTLY when he was supposed to. We could have somebody alongside the tent even CUE him. The cymbals crash. The train chugs. This is a BRILLIANT idea."

Adler still wasn't eating.

"Okay, forgetting all that, and acknowledging that you are opposed to this, can you even THINK of a song that might be adapted to a train whistle?"

"I don't think Eleanor is going to go for this," he said.

Eleanor Leonard is the founder and chairman of the music festival.

"You wrote that number one hit 'Steam Heat' for Pajama Game," I told him. "If you could write a song with the clank of a steam radiator in it, you could write a song with a train whistle in it."

"Don't call me, I'll call you," Adler said.

Lunch was over. We got up. "This is the greatest public relations and marketing idea of all time," I said.

I am going to call Eleanor Leonard.

On Sunday, when the Academy Awards are announced, one man who will be sitting in one of the front row seats will be Graham Leader, a resident of East Hampton and the producer of the Academy Award nominated movie, In The Bedroom. This is the third film that Leader has produced in the last twenty-five years, though it is the first to enjoy great success. In his adult life, he's had one foot firmly planted in the world of art galleries and art auctions and the other in the world of filmmaking. Though his film career might have gone along at the speed of a snail, it seems that he learned from his earlier experiences.

Graham Leader grew up in southern England in a small town along the White Cliffs of Dover. His father was a successful businessman in the plastics industry, filling a niche by importing plastic casting machinery into post-war England. He often designed and equipped entire factories. Graham's mother and sister now live in Melbourne, Australia. His sister, Janie Rowe, married an Aussie and has become well known for her work counseling drug addicts and she recently founded the Merabel Foundation, a nationwide organization that helps orphans of drug addicts, providing them with housing, education and summer camp. Graham now spends Christmas in Australia, enjoying the summer in December down under.

After boarding school in England, he went to college in Switzerland, where he studied literature and became interested in the arts. After traveling around for a couple of years, he settled in London in the early 1970s where he first studied art at the Victoria and Albert Museum before getting a job as an art dealer at Marlborough Fine Art.

"I did very well at the time," he said. "But in the middle of that decade the country fell into a serious recession. As a result, the British coal miners went on strike. The electricity was off for half the day and at night in London it was pitch black. I'd go to work at the gallery and of course there wasn't much going on. Finally, I said to my boss 'This is crazy, I'm leaving for a while. Maybe I'll come back, but I have to get out of here.'"

In 1975, at the age of twenty-five Graham came to New York to attend the art auctions, but the market was very slow at the time. Instead, he traveled to Nashville and Texas with a documentary filmmaker, Jim Szalapski. Jim had introduced him to country music and filmmaking when they had first met in Paris. "Jim was very excited about making a film based on Nashville and the whole country music scene and I told him that I would come on board and produce the film. We started shooting two months later." The result of that spontaneous tour through the South in a battered old VW bus was a ninety-minute film entitled Heartworn Highways. The musicians included Townes Van Zandt, Guy Clark, Steve Earle and David Allen Coe. They were filmed in prisons, bars, recording studios and their homes.

Who's Here:

Graham Leader Producer

"I loved the whole collaborative filmmaking process," Graham said.

In the end, Heartworn Highways played at the Eighth Street Cinema in New York, where it achieved critical, but sadly not financial, success. Ironically, the following year, Robert Altman came out with Nashville, a huge hit worldwide.

Shortly after this Graham married Jacqui Leader, how he first arrived in the Hamptons.

"In my late twenties, then living in New York, I came out east and fell in love with Montauk. I took a room every summer at Sharon's Inn, high on the cliffs of Montauk. It's one of the association homes built by Stanford White. I was there with a group of friends in the summer of 1979, after the house was struck by lightning and severely damaged."

Graham reads widely and when he likes an article, story or novel, he will occasionally option the film rights. One novel he liked very much in the late 80s was called Shuttlecock, written by Graham Swift. He paid for the rights for one year and then embarked on adapting the story as a full-length film. The film, which took about five years to get made, tells the story of a young Englishman, the son of a World War II hero and spy, whose code name was Shuttlecock. As events unfold, however, it turns out that the father is not at all what he had been cracked up to be, so the son embarks on a quest to find out the truth and in so doing re-establishes their relationship.

Shuttlecock played as the opening night film at the San Sebastian Film Festival in 1991. Other than that small triumph, just about anything that could have gone wrong with the production and distribution of this film did so. Since then it has languished in the closet.

In fact almost everything went awry — one director left before filming, payroll checks were problematic, one bank changed the terms of their loan in mid-stream and the First Annual Hampton's Film Festival changed their mind and discarded the film. In 1994, a major feature article by William Grimes appeared on the front page of the "Arts and Leisure" section of The New York Times citing Shuttlecock as an object lesson on what can go wrong with an independent film. Three years after the film was made, Graham was still travelling to Europe to reassure creditors. After that came In the Bedroom.

During the production of Shuttlecock, Graham discovered the work of Andre Dubus and acquired, through another East Hampton resident, Philip Spitzer, now a close friend, the film rights to the short story, Killings. Leader collaborated with Robert Festinger, who had first read the story as a reader for HBO and had taken a crack at the script on his own. They worked together for six years. During this period many renowned directors and actors participated and contributed. With the help of close friends and colleagues and, in particular, Steve and Lester Dembitzer and David Ladik, Leader managed to stay afloat and keep the project alive.

Although the script was widely appreciated for the quality of the writing, it proved impossible to put together the financing. The prospects seemed very slim.

Then, around 1997, actor Todd Field, best known a well-known personality who lives in the Hamptons and works both as a theater director and at the Children's Museum. Though they have since divorced, they still live on the East End, where they have primarily raised their children. I asked Graham for his roles in Eyes Wide Shut and Ruby in Paradise, contacted Leader with the proposal that he direct the film. He had called his lawyer to see if he could obtain the rights to Killings. The lawyer informed him that someone named Graham Leader owned those rights.

At this point in the interview, I leaned forward and asked Mr. Leader this question:

"How was it," I asked, "that you kept the rights to Andre Dubus' short story for so many years?"

"Well," he said, "I guess I could not let it go. The time would come around and I would find a way to renew it. I didn't think twice about it. I just knew it could be a really good film."

Field collaborated with Festinger, and then with Leader on a rewrite. The story, if you haven't seen the movie, is about an eighteen year-old high school graduate who has an affair with an older woman, who is legally separated from a man who has a lethal temper. Sissy Spacek plays the mother, Tom Wilkinson the father, Marisa Tomei the woman going through the divorce and Nick Stahl as her young lover. The movie was shot in thirty days in and around Camden, Maine. And it is, in my opinion, one of the most powerful films ever made. It has been nominated for five academy awards.

Regardless of what happens at the Oscars Sunday, Leader who is now 52, will continue with one foot in the art camp and one foot in the film camp. Working in association with Glen Horowitz, he is currently renovating the gallery space upstairs at the Glen Horowitz Book Store on Newtown Lane in East Hampton.

As for films, with all the acclaim and awards

In the Bedroom has received, he is being offered many scripts and now finds himself in the enviable position of being able to choose more or less whatever appeals to him, despite a somewhat drawn out and checkered early career.

Leader has recently rented a house on Neck Path in East Hampton. His two children have lived here since 1991. Kira, his daughter, has taken a year off from college and is working as an assistant teacher at the Child Development Center in Wainscott. Sax, his son, is in his last year at the Hampton Day School and is much appreciated in the local sports scene. There's a moral here, I'm not sure what it is, maybe it's persistence pays, maybe it's cream rises to the top. We wish everyone involved with In the Bedroom the best of luck Sunday.

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

Observations of an Islander # 192

Hell House

Everyone on the island acknowledges that the town needs to focus more attention on the needs of the youth. Many people are putting forth great effort to create healthy activities for youth. (Kudos to Margaret Wilson for organizing a swimming program, which I predict will expand with demand.) We had a youth center next to the Presbyterian Church for 15 years and everyone was sad when it was closed; we all thought it was a big solution to idle and roving youth.

BUT THEN A VERY ARTICULATE PERSON WROTE A VERY CONVINCING AND ENLIGHTENING LETTER TO THE Shelter Island Reporter regarding her experience living next to the youth center for the fifteen years of it's existence.

"I heard screaming, yelling, very loud music and other noise before, during and after hours, including sometimes late at night. Fireworks were set off late in the evening. Cars raced and screeched in and out of the church parking... My home was broken into on numerous occasions by youth... I allowed myself to be talked out of pressing charges by the police. I witnessed youth fighting on the church... I witnessed youth throwing things out the windows of the youth center building, often the furniture, clothing, shoes or whatever it was remained on the grounds or hanging from trees or power lines. I witnessed youth drinking alcohol, smoking cigarettes and other things behind the youth center building before and after hours... There were drug arrests behind my property.

"I also do not believe that the youth center is the solution to the "crisis." It has simply consolidated the crisis in the past to the property next door to me. Teenagers get into trouble when they are hanging out; providing a building where they can hang out creates problems. No one has presented any research to support the efficacy of a "youth center" (hang out).

"I also think it is sad that nothing more ambitious or creative could be proposed for the youth of Shelter Island such as a bowling alley, skating rink, a pool or another tangible activity... I cannot imagine any responsible, intelligent parent or taxpayer supporting another youth center. What the youth of Shelter Island really need are adults who make better choices."

Picky, picky, picky. Gee lady, it's not like the kids were having sex in a church or something. Whoops, okay, not the best example (I can hear you laughing, Mark K).

I was talking with my brother David, now the Majordomo at the Chequit and Ram's Head Inn. We agreed, there was NOTHING TO DO but drugs, sex and rock & roll, when we were going to school here in the 70's. Students were so bored, they married teachers. The town opposed building a movie house, bowling alley, skating rink or any focused activity place because we "didn't need those outside contaminations" on Shelter Island. The excuse I heard then was that "if the island had places like that, they would turn into youth hang outs where kids would drug, drink, smoke and destroy property."

The same NOTHING TO DO is here, but I think the drug choices are better now; the drug access is better, too. In the old days, you had to make the trip to Greenport for drugs. Who knew that now it could be delivered right to the youth center? Well, there's progress for you. The sex now has the exciting element of acquiring a life threatening disease. Hey, bonus.

The lady who wrote the letter is proposing ideas with an extraordinary amount of common sense. Reminds me of SIHOP's idea to purchase open land on Manwaring Road to build needed housing. That idea got shot down by people who didn't need housing, so I'm sure efforts to benefit the youth will be shot down by people who don't need, I mean have, teens. Plus, the town supervisor is a Republican, so any solution proposed must be free or financed by a foreign government. And I suppose selling drugs is out of the question to finance an activity center for youth, so...

Here's my solution: Now that Billy Joel is an official local, we get him, James and Linda Eklund, Cliff Clark, Mark Karnarvogel, Chief Springer, Gerry Siller, Patricia Shillingburg and all the other really good movers and shakers on the island together and lock them in a room at the Chequit. All of these people have a super low b.s. tolerance. By dawn, Billy will have organized a S I Youth Benefit Concert to pay for the Theatre-Rink-Bowl that James will build, that Linda will market, that Mark and Chief Springer will supervise, that Cliff will organize the transportation for, that Pat and Gerry will keep everyone on task to accomplish. It's a perfect plan.

Reward for me? Not necessary. Well, just one little thing maybe. Listen, I know that Billy Joel is a brilliant singer/composer, hit records, major awards, blah, blah, blah.... But, his true calling is as a boat builder. I just want one little Shelter Island Runabout mahogany boat. What's one little boat? I'll use it to take Shelter Islands' undesirable youth water skiing... through well-chummed, shark-infested waters off Montauk. Hey, I gotcha youth activities right here, baby.

I LOVE PARIS IN THE FALL

Even though it's the winter before, I had my chance to spring forward and see Paris Style for the Fall 2002. The runways were truly an international affair with Americans in Paris, Russian models, British celebrities and the crème-de-la-crème of French designers. In the first collections created in a changed world-there was a global yin and yang-the moods were:

- * Designer tribalism...coats made from all varieties of skins, animal horns fasten jackets
- * Aviator jackets and pants
- * Opposites attract: rocker meets preppy
- * Gold rush
- * Belle de jour bows: bows will be big
- * Porno-inspired titillating corsets, high boots; and lingerie
- * Reed thin jeans

Report from Paris: This was a season in transition where designers were stripping design to the essence; they came out with skins as if they'd just been hunting; think of Survivor or of ancient tribes. Marc Jacobs told me backstage at Louis Vuitton "we always like to play one thing off the other. If you put things together that go together too often then it gets very, very flat...it's quite nice the idea of something soft and sensuous against a motorcycle pant". The contrasts also worked at Chanel where Karl Lagerfeld sent out Belgian Goth inspired models with metal hair extensions for an irreverent take on Chanel, including a version of the classic Chanel with a rocker attitude bow, but this time the bow was slung around the hips as a belt. John Galiano sent out Eskimo and Mongolian "hotties", his take on how to have a great look "We keep thinking how would Kate (Moss) wear this...a special piece with a more surplus (surplus means flea market) piece?" Eclectic mixes once again...Jean Paul Gaultier's clever concept of layers had the models hanging the clothes like a dry cleaner. Overall one gets the feeling that we are craving beauty and so things may well get dressier for daytime, but the clothes will flow easier and not be too serious or it will feel old fashioned.

The fashion forward feeling has returned to Paris, and its influence, however toned down and translated, will cross the Atlantic and land on Main Street.

The Global Wine Scene: Israel's French Roots

Mention the name Carmel and chances are you'll conjure images of the beautiful coastal town south of the Napa and Sonoma counties in California. But there is another Carmel, half a world away from the one on the edge of the great Pacific, that takes its name from a mountain chain in that far away land. This Carmel, in the Middle East, is Israel's oldest winery.

The story begins back in the 1870s, when a group of Eastern European Jews emigrated to Palestine, dreaming of a Jewish homeland filled with opportunities for prosperity. But when they arrived, they found a land devoid of industry where subsistence agriculture, at best, was practiced. To the rescue came the wealthy and willing patron Baron Edmond de Rothschild, whose father, James, had purchased the renowned Chateau Lafite in Bordeaux in 1868. And after the fortuitous failure of a silkworm farm, the stage was set for the creation of Israel's first vineyards as the Baron decided to help the pioneers in the way he knew best — creating fine wine.

The first vineyards were planted south of Jaffa and, in 1882, French rootstock made the journey from Bordeaux, accompanied by the Baron's specialists to advise the new viticulturalists in all matters, great and small. A winery was built shortly thereafter and, in 1896, the first Carmel wines were presented at the International Exhibition of Berlin. Over a hundred thousand people (remember, this happened at the turn of the last century!) visited the pavilion devoted to the Jewish colony and, just eighteen years after its founding, a Carmel wine won a gold medal at the 1900 Paris World's Fair.

The wine business continued to boom until the end of WWI. After the war was over, the industry lost its principal markets in Russia due to the revolution, the United States due to Prohibition and the Middle East due to Arab nationalism. During this time, many vineyards were uprooted and citrus planted in their place. These groves, however, flourished in the climate, as anyone who has been fortunate enough to enjoy a Jaffa orange knows.

Then, during WWII, the industry began to rebound as new waves of immigrants brought their wine drinking traditions with them. For some years after the war, Carmel focused on sweet wines that were used for sacramental purposes, but with the emergence of the global wine market, Israeli vintners sought new varietals. And in 1971, Carmel presented its first full range of premium kosher wines to the United States market.

This year, 2002, Carmel celebrates its 120th anniversary and, to celebrate the occasion as well as the upcoming holy days, it has released two new kosher vintages: 2000 Chardonnay Private Collection and 2000 Merlot Private Collection.

The Chardonnay is crisp and medium-bodied with delicate lemon and apple aromas. When paired with chicken in a tarragon cream sauce, it is lovely. It would also be fine with other delicate herbs, such as sage, and white-fleshed fish such as sole. Suggested retail: $13.99.

The Merlot, fermented in stainless steel and French oak, exhibits ripe fruit aromas and has a long finish. My only criticism was a slightly overwhelming acidity, but this does smooth out as the wine breathes. Suggested retail: $20.99. These wines are available at Amagansett Wine & Spirits, Franey's in East Hampton and Lamplighter Wines in Southampton.

According to Jim Trezise of the New York Wine & Grape Foundation, the United States "remains a barbaric country. Not in terms of wine production, but consumption. Though there are now over 2000 American wineries (160 in New York) spanning all 50 states, the US stands a lowly 31st in the world's ranking of adult per capita wine consumption at 2 gallons (about 10 bottles) per year." French consumption, on the other hand, stands at 15.1. "So are the French stumbling around the streets?" Jim asks. "Hardly. They're having a glass of wine with their meals and having less heart disease than Americans despite all the Galois cigarettes and foie gras."

To help promote wine's health benefits, the website Wineanswers.com is planning a major advertising campaign using the same agency that created Nike's "Just do it" commercials and the "got milk?" ads. Got wine? Get it. And lend a new significance to the old toast, 'to your health.' Cheers.

North Fork-Critic's Choice

Antares Café. Named for a brilliant star in the Scorpius constellation, this is one of the brightest stars in the North Fork restaurant firmament. Chef/owner Matt Murphy's stylish, art-filling dining room offers highly ambitious and creative dishes. The appetizers alone merit a visit and the entrees make you quickly forget the appetizers. Menu highlights have included bouillabaisse with local fish and shellfish, lightly seared foie gras accompanied by mango and crystallized ginger and filet mignon in a cabernet reduction. Chestnut flour gnocchi was another knockout. Duck dishes are always inspired. Desserts keep pace and a cheese plate is often available. Prices range from $ 18-28. Brewer Yacht Yard, Greenport, 477-8839 (Bradbrook, 6/23/00).

Coeur des Vignes. Outstanding classic French cuisine in a charming timber-beamed house of relaxed elegance. Chef Arie Pavlou's foie gras with papaya, peppercorns, pomegranate and peach schnapps was honored in 2001 by Sante magazine's cooking with spirits competition. Perennial Wine Spectator Award of Excellence winner. Escargots cooked in parsley, garlic butter and white wine sauce tops the list of timeless favorites. Fish specialties frequently fresh from the boat - theirs. Excellent game dishes are similarly acquired. Prix fixe dinners provide excellent value. Entrees $18-$31. Main Road, Southold. 765-2656. (Bradbrook, 10/15/01)

Cooperage Inn. Chefs Liam and Hegeman carry the banner of North Fork cuisine. Freshness of local ingredients evident in every bite, produce comes from neighboring farmstands. Inspired appetizers, topped by pan-seared fresh mozzarella over spinach with artichoke hearts and plum tomatoes. Homemade dressings enliven fresh salads, notably the house salad of greens, fruits, raisins and nuts. Superb steaks and pastas. Rigatoni ala vodka with pancetta, basil and sage, particularly noteworthy. Cornmeal encrusted Atlantic salmon attains a very high level. Excellent values include grilled double pork chops atop wild mushroom herb stuffing. Owner Jonathan Perkins' stylish country restaurant is a North Fork gem. Entrees $14-$30. Sound Ave. Baiting Hollow. 727-8994. (Simm, 6/29/01).

Do Little's. Very welcoming and unpretentious. An excellent menu for diners interested in fresh, smartly prepared dishes that are not calorically trumped up. Thai mussels in ginger/lemongrass broth hit the mark. Excellent pasta dishes, headlined by justifiably famous Seafood Pasta in white wine sauce, filled with mussels, clams and shrimp over linguine with fresh tomatoes and spinach. Stuffed ravioli with sun-dried tomatoes and mozzarella is beautifully done. Sensibly priced wine list, with a knowing nod to local vintages. Entrees, $12.95-$19.95. Rt. 25, Mattituck Plaza, Mattituck. 298-4000. (Bradbrook, 7/28/01).

La Plage. Obscure geography, sensational cuisine. This sums up owner / chef Wayne Wadington's destination restaurant on Long Island Sound, north of the tiny village of Wading River. No expense spared in the acquisition of top ingredients, local or otherwise. Complex recipes spell highly creative fusion cuisine: New American in heart, French in spirit. Many highlights include: Chilled lobster soup garnished with roe; salad of tart apples with bleu cheese, walnuts and mache; rare yellowfin tuna with homemade potato chips; caramelized jumbo sea scallops with snow crab fritter. Desserts are imaginative and exceptionally well executed. Entrees $17-$28. 744-9200. (Bradbrook, 8/4/00.)

Ross' Rotisserie and Smokehouse. A casual, homey eat-in or take-out spot opened by John Ross, former chef/

owner of Ross' North Fork Restaurant. Great rotisserie and crispy fried chicken; marinated, honey-glazed duck legs; hickory-smoked spareribs; homemade soups and chowders; and many cooked-from-scratch side dishes. Every Friday fish fry provides excellent value. A special 6-pound LI duck, cooked crisp, boned and quartered, accompanied by duck sauce and a garnish of apricots and cranberries ($19.99) is available by reservation the day before. Open every day from 12-8. Route 48, Southold, 765-9655. (Simm, 10/5/01).

The Seafood Barge. Deserved reputation among the elite seafood restaurants on Long Island. Owner / manager team of Dick Ehrlich and Betsy Flinn ensure every plate served adheres to a very high standard. Menu highlights include mussels sautéed with garlic and shallots, tomato concasse, tarragon, white wine and cream; shelled lobster pot pie with baby vegetables, crispy duck breast and leg confit in a peach / apple reduction. Desserts range from restrained to decadent. Wine list, heavy on local vintages is a Wine Spectator "New Award Winner." Panoramic views of Peconic Bay complete a very pretty picture. Rt. 25, Southold. Entrees $24-$32. 765-3010. (Bradbrook, 8/3/01).

Touch of Venice. Simplicity, freshness, flavor are the hallmarks here. Named appropriately for cuisine, location on the banks of Mattituck Inlet and an intricate wall mural dominating the dining room. Proprietor Ettore Pennach shares the cooking with son Brian. Among kitchen's highlights: Stuffed artichoke, eggplant Sorrentino, filet mignon au jus, with garlic and mushrooms. Lobster Meat, a frequent special, is an exciting dish of imaginative complexity. It combines chunks of lobster on a bed of al dente spaghetti with fresh seasonal vegetables topped with basil oil and lemon juice. Entrees $12-$21. Wickham Ave., Mattituck. 298-5851. (Bradbrook, 8/4/00).

Shop 'til You Drop...With Maria Tennariello

The days are getting longer and the shopping is getting better. No kidding! Let's get going...

Starting out in East Hampton I stopped at a cute shop that is packed to the rafters with great merchandise. A Little of What You Fancy sits nicely on Newtown Lane has wonderful gifts for everyone including Kiehl's, which has several new items in their product line such as the luscious avocado eye cream. Lotahntique, from France, is elegant and simply packaged. The line contains everything from incense to body lotion and linen sprays and wash. Caldrea is an upscale all natural home care line in delightfully different fragrances. Cleaning your home will never be the same with these products. And don't forget Easter baskets and chocolates like Godiva, Joseph Schmidt and Neuhaus. Right now this shop is filled with cute bunnies, big and small and they will help to make glorious Easter baskets and they have Passover candies as well. I could go on and on, but I won't...See this shop for yourself...You won't believe it.

On Main Street in East Hampton, Tennis East is having a really good sale with 70% off clothing. Now is the time you should stock up on what you may have missed out on. I did, and I don't even play the game of tennis.

Bridgehampton's Main Street is always buzzing with strollers, people watchers and shoppers. I stopped into Aimee's Closet for a look at what all the fuss is about.

Toby is a privileged pooch

Well, I found out that the 20 to 50% off sale has people coming and going with lots of fun merchandise such as clothing, accessories, jewelry and much more.

Is your dog or husband (only kidding) getting out more than you are? Does the only exercise you get consist of chasing your best friend down the road? How about your neighbors, do they complain that your pup is pooping on their lawn? But most of all are you concerned about your pet's safety? If you've answered yes to any of the above questions then you should consider a Dogwatch Hidden Fence System. It's simple, safe and it really works. My very dear friend Barry just had his entire property Dogwatched and his pooch Tobi is as safe as a babe in toyland. Dogwatch of Suffolk County provides professional training for you and your dog with each installation. Give them a call for more details at 631-287-1695.

Check out Kathleen's own fine assortment of jelly beans, sour bunnies, malted eggs and homemade style chocolate Easter bunnies at Tate's Bake Shop on North Sea Road in Southampton. All of the above are made with creamy, rich Belgian chocolate and the bunnies are sure to make your holiday sweet. Easter orders are now available. Call 631-283-9830.

Wainscott Windows & Walls on Montauk Highway in Wainscott is having a Levolor custom wood blind sale with 50% off. Now is the time to start cleaning, changing, and re-decorating...

Hot off the press: don't pass by Ben & Jerry's at Main Street Sweets in Westhampton Beach. Main Street Sweets is now open for the season with a full line of Kosher for Passover and Easter candies on display for the upcoming holidays. Hey, fill up those baskets and tell Kenny that I sent you...Say hi.

Off the beaten path a bit, at Tanger 2 in Riverhead look for California Sunshine Swimwear Super Store for all your swim and resort wear needs at discount prices. There are over 10,000 swimsuits, matching cover-ups and accessories including mix and match separates to choose from. The sizes range from extra small to 40E and extra long torsos are also available along with large sizes from 18-26.

Time is running away from me...It is time to get home and put my feet up and chart my course for next week's shopping trip.

Until next week. Ciao and Happy Shopping!

Q. I am renting a house in Quogue this summer and I am looking for a reliable cleaning service. Can you help me with this one? D.I.

A. I found a brand new cleaning service for homeowners and renters in the Hamptons called Hamptons Wizard. They boast affordable, reliable and personalized service; that's their motto. They will arrange all basic services, including house cleaning, lawn maintenance, pool and hot tub maintenance, garbage removal, laundry, etc. Give them a call at 631-728-6100.

Away At School

Rowing

It's the early morning and the sun is not even out yet as your alarm clock goes off. The roll out of bed begins and your head is pounding with a groggy headache. It's 5:00 in the morning and you ask yourself why am I doing this to myself? Why do I row? But you have very little time to think about it because you are already out the door, with sweatpants over spandex. The van to the boathouse is all fired up and it is leaving in ten minutes. You have to run as fast as you can to make it to the already packed van. When it pulls out onto the street, the entire team is jammed inside the van like sardines. You slowly get yourself mentally prepared for the upcoming practice as everyone sits in silence listening to whatever the beat up radio picks up for the team to listen to. You have to do well today on the boat. If you do not, the guy who is just a little worse than you will take your spot.

Within minutes, you are at the boathouse stretching to the point of breaking and complaining to your teammates about the exam that you are going to take after practice at 9:00 later in the day. That exam is more important than any other exam that you have ever taken in your entire life, but it seems like it is one hundred years away because there is a practice that needs to be focused on. You must survive and attack this practice with everything you have. The pressure to succeed dwells in your body like a vice around your mind.

The coach comes out and calls out the line up for the boats. Your heart sinks when you realize that you have been moved one seat back because one of your teammates has beaten your most recent race time. At least you still have a seat on the boat, if you do well today, you might be able to keep it. Once you get on the boat it is all business and no bull. The coach cruises by dressed in full winter clothes in a motor boat shouting out commands to the coxswains through a megaphone as the coxswains shout out to the group of eight young men, who concentrate on their calls while focusing on rowing in perfect formation. It's thirty-two degrees outside and your hands are growing numb (gloves are not allowed on the boat), but your brow still becomes covered with sweat.

With every stroke that you pull on the oar you give yourself a couple of seconds to let your mind drift and look out at the river, the bridges, the buildings engulfing you, and for a moment, you take it all in. This is the life of a rower.

What makes rowing so interesting compared to other sports is how simple the concept is of rowing a boat as fast as you can. The entire sport seems to be based on a nursery rhyme that all of us sang when we were young. But it is the simplicity that makes it tempting to try, and it is the intensity and the complex innards of the sport that make it great. Once you are a rower you stay a rower, and that is that.

An eight man crew pulling on oars of the college that they attend as hard as they can feels like what you would imagine it feels like to be part of a locomotive. The arms and legs of each rower are a piston that pushes the massive train along and the oxygen in the air is the fuel, the coxswain is the whistle. Inside the boat the sounds of the water running beneath resonate through the ears of every rower. The slamming of the oarlocks on each stroke sounds like a herd of Clydesdales stomping away at every stroke. The two boats pull up next to each other and the coxine gives the call for full pressure. The competition has begun. Every stroke, breath, every second could mean the difference between winning the race of the day or losing it.

Competing is the name of the game in crew, and it is what draws every person with an itch to win to the sport. Rowing against another boat of competitors and winning is better than winning in any other sport. A good way of imagining the experience is to remember any time in your life that you won something, then multiply that feeling times one hundred. That is how exciting the sport is, and that is why people train so hard for it. Just for that joyous taste of victory that flows through every taste bud of the spirit. The fact that every guy in the other boat you were racing did everything they possibly could, they tore every muscle, pushed the envelope on their lungs, and still didn't win. All because you did a little bit more than them, you pulled on your oar a little bit harder than they did. That race to the finish is over and you won, you did the impossible. It is an incredible feeling and it turns into an addiction. You only want more of it so the effort is given to get it.

At the end of the practice, everyone is completely awake and ready for the day, even though it is still only 7:30 in the morning. The paddle back in the $30,000 boat is friendly and the mist rises off the river, and the sun shines on your face. You get back, stretch, lick your wounds, and take on the day with a whole new perspective. The perspective of "I can handle anything." Just make sure that you do not think about tomorrow's practice that will bring you to your breaking point once again. Just take a deep breath, pat yourself, on the back and look out at the water from the balcony of the boathouse.

CALL US FOR DETAILS: 727-7277

*This loan is secured by your home; property insurance is required. Minimum loan is $25,000. This rate is available for loans between $25,000 and $100,000 if you are a "Prime Checking" or a "Prime Plus Checking" customer AND you make your payments by automatic deduction. Maximum loan to value is 80% less any outstanding mortgages. Typical borrower paid closing costs are waived. If the loan is terminated for any reason within three years, you will have to repay us for all related closing costs. These costs will be itemized at the time of closing. Rate and terms may vary. For example: a 5 year loan to a Prime Checking or a Prime Plus Checking customer with an automatic debit feature for $25,000 would be repayable at an APR of 6.99% in 60 monthly payments of $494.87. A Prime Checking customer must maintain a monthly average balance of $1,000 in a checking account or $1,500 in a statement/passbook savings account or $5,000 in a premium savings account. A Prime Plus Checking customer must maintain $10,000 in combined balances in all deposit accounts (excluding IRA's). This offer is available on new loan accounts only. Interest on this loan may be tax deductible, consult your tax advisor. If you are not a Prime Checking or Prime Plus Checking customer, contact us for other terms and conditions which we can offer!

Dear Future Property Owner,

All the staff at this office are more than saddened by the September 11 terrorist attack on our great city and country. Our traditional St. Patrick's Day Parade continues to be one of the highlights of the year in our fine city, not to mention the local parade in Montauk. We are all trying our best to carry on even though we have all had serious life style changes because of this.

The real estate business is getting back to normal after a serious slow down. We have a number of new listings and many properties have gone to contract since the beginning of the year. We hope that those who were planning to buy or sell and waiting for the right time will hesitate no longer.

Shelter Island is appropriately named because it is a safe haven away from all the hustle and bustle and we refer to our "island" as the Un-Hampton. Nobody knows more about Shelter Island properties than we do. We hope you will contact us to hear about our exciting selection of homes for sale or rent, building lots or commercial opportunities. Come see why we do call our beautiful little island the "Un-Hampton". - Georgiana

Home Service Guide

Welcome to Dan's Papers "Home Service Guide." In the following pages you will find everything you need to get your house ready for the summer. There are helpful articles about what to ask contractors and service people who you may need to deal with, how to deal with the pool and garden and a host of other house related issues. There is even a section about books for those who are inclined to do the work themselves. But that can cut into your beach time, so there is also a comprehensive list of local trades people that can do the work, while you relax. Don't forget to pull this section out and keep it handy so that when the roof starts leaking, the pool water gets foggy or the sprinklers aren't working.

What You Need To Know About Zoning

There are ten towns on the East End of Long Island with numerous incorporated villages scattered throughout. Every town and village has to comply with the New York State Uniform Fire Prevention Building Code for building safety. But zoning is about quality of life not safety, and not every township and village has the same zoning rules. While some contractors will take care of getting all the necessary permits for home construction work, there are some basic things you should know about zoning before you sign a contract.

First, you need to know how to go about applying for the permit and what you will need to show them in order to speed up the process. Primarily, you need a clear and readable copy of the survey showing the proposal of work. A survey is a site plan, a map of the property produced by a licensed surveyor. Check with your local zoning department (to see how many copies you need to submit with the application). You will also need copies of the plans, proof of compliance with New York State worker's compensation laws and a copy of the certificate of occupancy if the structure involved is not a new home.

There is no telling to a certainty how long an application will take to be processed. In East Hampton, it usually takes up to ten business days if no wetlands are involved. In Southampton it can take up to six weeks, depending upon the season, though typically three to four weeks is about average. All you can really do is make sure everything is in order and done as completely as possible to avoid any unwanted delays, like making sure your plans are thorough and detailed. If something is missing or inaccurately marked, your permit will be denied and a new application will have to be filled out, resulting in delays that are unnecessary.

If the property in question involves wetlands, or is anywhere near wetlands, you must first get a letter of non-jurisdiction, so you should apply to the conservation department of the zoning board at the start. If you apply for a regular zoning permit first, and the department finds that wetlands are involved, the application will be forwarded to conservation, delaying the onset of construction until it is determined that the wetlands will be unharmed.

Cost of a permit varies between the towns, too. In Southampton, for example, it costs $15 for the first $1,000 worth of renovation, and $3.50 for each additional $1,000. For new structures, it is calculated by square footage and class of structure, first floor, second floor, garage, deck, and so forth, with the price per square footage varying according to class. In East Hampton, on the other hand, interior alterations will cost $15 per square foot, while the fee for exterior alterations is based on the type of construction and estimated final cost.

Not all work, however, requires a permit. There is a distinct difference between renovations and repairs, and knowing the difference can save you time, money and an unnecessary headache.

Homeowners are allowed to do any work directed towards maintaining their homes, as long as nothing about the actual structure is being altered. Basically, you are allowed to do anything that can be considered a normal repair. If you are fixing your window, for example, a zoning permit is not necessary because it is only a normal repair. If you are making it bigger or wider, however, you will need to apply for a permit because it is a structural change to the property. Generally, your contractor will know the difference, but if you are doing the work yourself, you can always check with a local building inspector to clarify the details.

According to zoning laws, permits are needed when installing or building anything new in or around the home; that includes plumbing, electrical or structural work, like a swimming pool, deck or patio. Everything varies from town to town, but usually a building permit will cover plumbing work in the house in addition to any structural changes. If you are doing any electrical work, however, you will most likely need to get a separate permit.

Property that was built before modern zoning laws and therefore may not be up to code is exempt from the codes. Any new add-ons to the property, however, must be built to today's standards. And if more than fifty percent of a building is being altered, then the building in its entirety must be updated to meet the modern code as well.

If you have any questions regarding the zoning laws in your area, call your local zoning board.

Do It Yourself: The Books With The Basics

You do not want to have to call someone every time there is a small repair needed to be done, or a modification you want to make to your house. There are many things you may want to do on your own, if not to save money, then maybe just because you have the spare time. If this is the case, below are some books you might find helpful in guiding you along your home-repair journey.

1. Great Decks and Furnishings; A Step-by-Step Guide, from the Black & Decker Home Improvement Library ($16.95).

Great Decks and Furnishings is a good, specific task oriented guidebook. Inside you will find various kinds of decks, including high rectangular, rectangular, inside corner, island, wraparound, angled, and low profile. You will also find the deck furnishings you can build to put on the deck, like a bench or a box or rail planter, as well as various ways to modify the layout of the deck in size, shape and pattern. If you want to build one of the specific decks shown in the book, or one of the specific modifications outlined, you will find that the diagrams and pictures are the book's greatest asset. The pictures are big, colorful and glossy, and the diagrams are well-labeled and simple to follow. They also explain a little something about the tools you will need, Black & Decker of course, and how to use them for the task at hand. However, a lack of specifics is its biggest drawback. If you want to learn the basics about carpentry work, this book is not the one to use. It is not a reference guide; it works best only for the specific task at hand.

2. Orthos's All About: Carpentry Basics ($11.95).

For a better, all around understanding of carpentry read Carpentry Basics. It may be a little difficult to find, but it is also a great manual for general knowledge.

Carpentry Basics will give you the ability to do more in the future, rather than just take care of one specific task. There are some step-by-step lessons explaining the beginnings of carpentry: what you are doing, what you are using and what you need and when. It explains materials, like lumber and sheet goods, how to measure and mark everything, and how to use different cuts and saws with big colorful, glossy pictures that are easy to follow. Towards the end you will find tasks like removing and installing windows and cabinets, with some basic repair work for doors, walls and floors, but Carpentry Basics is best used as a general information guide.

3. Home Remodeling for Dummies, by Morris Carey and James Carey. ($19.99)

At almost four hundred pages, Home Remodeling for Dummies is a great combination of basic technique and building advice. It not only gives you a little of both, but it also offers tips on how to keep costs down, and what to look for when choosing a contractor.

Its biggest asset, however, is that it is easy to find; you will find it in almost every bookstore. But because they crammed so much information into one big book, it is a little more difficult to follow. The pictures in this book are not nearly as numerous as in the other two, and the diagrams are in black and white printed ink, which make them tougher to understand.

4. Basic Wiring and Electrical Repairs, from the Black & Decker Home Improvement Library ($14.95)

While Basic Wiring is very specifically task oriented, the tasks offered are more general in nature, and probably more applicable to household life. This makes the book very beneficial because you are likely to use it again and again.

Basic Wiring does a good job of explaining what you need to know when working with electrical equipment;

What To Ask Your Painter

Painting a house is pretty easy; painting a house well, is difficult and requires a lot of skill. The problem is that all you need to call yourself a painter is a few ladders and some paint brushes. It's an easy business to get into and plenty of fly-by-night painters make appearances every summer and are gone when the leaves start to change color – if not sooner.

Often, these come-and-go guys will under bid a job, slap on a coat of paint and give you the tail light guarantee (if you can see their tail lights, it's guaranteed). The house will generally look fine and then winter rolls around (snow, ice, freezing rain) and with the blossoms of spring, big sheets of paint are peeling off your house. Meanwhile, they've spent a pleasant winter someplace south of the Mason-Dixon line. There are a number of questions that you should ask a prospective painter that will help you get the most for your money; it's not an investment that you should skimp on because a good paint job will protect and preserve your house for years to come.

The first thing to find out is how long a painter has been working in your area. If they've been around for a few years, you can be assured that they have a vested interest in doing a good job. A good exterior job can land an interior job in the fall or winter months when money gets tight for painting contractors. Ask to talk to some previous customers and see the painter's book (most keep pictures of their work). Look both for the quality of the work and at the types of the houses they have worked on.

The most important part of a paint job is the prep work. It's the hardest, most time consuming part of the job, but done properly it will make all the difference in the final product. Almost anyone can slap paint on a house; a good contractor will spend the majority of his time on the prep work. There are a number of steps to the process, so question the prospective painter closely on the procedure he'll follow.

The first thing that most painters will do is power wash the house. It's remarkable how much dirt will build up on a house between paint jobs; it's not uncommon for a homeowner to come home and see the washed house and be shocked by the actual color of the siding. Find out what your painter will use to clean the house (a number of cleaners on the market are good; bleach will kill mildew but used in too high a concentration it can kill shrubs and plants). The best painters will actually use scrub brushes on long handles and give the house a quick scrub and rinse. If you have a lot of peeling paint on the house, a good painter will scrape and sand first and then power wash afterwards. Loose paint falls off when sprayed with a power washer and makes a real mess around the yard. If they use this method, make sure they wait until the siding that has been scraped has properly dried before painting over it. Nothing will ruin a paint job faster than moisture trapped in the wood. (The same goes for painting after heavy rainstorms.)

All loose paint has to be removed and the edges sanded so that peeling won't occur in the future. This is a time consuming process, but it's the most important aspect of the job. Make sure high spots are done as thoroughly as low spots; shortcuts are tempting when you are twenty feet off the ground. Once scraped and sanded, a primer should be applied to any bare wood. If you have old windows with panes, any place there is loose glazing, it should be removed, the mullion should be sealed and

How To Choose A Contractor

It is time to do some work on the house. Maybe add that deck or patio to the back of your home like you have been talking about all these years. Or perhaps it is time to fix up your kitchen like you always wanted to. Either way, you have to find a contractor to do all the work. But how do you go about choosing the right one?

There are four things one should always consider before signing a contract for a job. First, the best way to find a contractor is by talking to your friends and family members. Find out who they have used when they had work done on their own homes. There is no easier and more comforting way of choosing a contractor than taking a recommendation from someone you trust about work you have already seen.

Second, find out how much experience they have under their belt. Experience should not necessarily decide everything for you, nor does it guarantee that they will do a good job; but finding someone who has withstood the test of time, and knowing how many jobs they might have done, will make it easier to feel comfortable with whomever you choose.

Third, and arguably the most important, check references. Would you hire someone at your office without talking to previous employers? No. The same is true here. Go out and see some of the jobs they have done over the years. Inspect their work. Talk to the homeowners. While it is true that a contractor will probably not reference any place they do not consider a good job, at least it can give you an idea of the work they have done in the past.

Lastly, make sure they know exactly what they are supposed to do before the work is started. You do not want to end up having to pay for a new kitchen when all you really wanted was a new sink with a garbage disposal.

—Brian Zapin

Painter

new glazing should be put in. Glazing takes time to dry so the painter should factor this into the schedule.

Once all the scraping and priming is done, the painting can begin. Many painters are using sprayers today and the quality finish that this method provides is quite good. The most important consideration with spraying is properly taping windows and fixtures and using plenty of drop cloths. A good spray guy can give you a great job, a bad sprayer can wreck your windows and, on a windy day, your neighbor's car. Make sure your painter is conscious of wind (I once had a boss who put a nice coat of yellow spots on a black Jaguar; it's a lesson you only need to learn once) and anything else that might get an unwanted coat of paint. When the body coat is done, it's time for the trim. This is the time for brushes. Many painters will spray large areas of trim (soffits and the like) and use brushes for detail work. Even the best painters can't use sprayers exclusively.

A few final tips: Latex paint can be applied over oil or latex paint; oil can only be applied over oil. Latex paint has come a long way and there really isn't any advantage to oil paint anymore. Clean, professionally dressed painters will generally keep your property cleaner as well. Avoid College Pro Painters, Student Painters and similar outfits. It may feel nice to help some college kids out by having them paint your house, but you'll get a sub-par paint job. To ease your conscience, remember there are plenty of college kids working the pro crews, doing the grunt work and learning on the job and making decent pay in the process.

Finally — and most importantly — treat the painters right. Having spent summers painting houses all through high school and college and brief stints afterwards, I know from experience that a cold soda or glass of lemonade on a hot day was much appreciated and always made us work harder and exert an extra little effort to make a job look good. A crew that likes you will do a good job, and a little tip at the end for each guy never hurts.

VERY IMPORTANT: Let your wife choose the color, custom mixed paints cannot be returned. —J.M.

the first thing it introduces is a glossary of important electrical jargon. Then it goes on with some necessary background information about wiring and how it works, like what the colors mean, and how to figure out ground wires.

This book will guide you through various household electrical repairs, like wall switches, receptacles, light fixtures, and doorbells and thermostats. There are lots of pictures in glossy color and well-labeled diagrams that are easy to follow. It's greatest asset is the basic knowledge of wiring and electricity, giving you a better general understanding so that you are able to work on equipment that is not illustrated in the book, like outlets, or washers and dryers. Just remember: always cut the power to the room you are working on before you get started.

5. Ortho's All About: Landscaping Decks, Patios and Balconies, by Jo Kellum, ASLA ($11.95)

Once your deck is in place, you will want to landscape it. Just like repairs and remodeling, there is no reason you cannot save a little money by doing it yourself, and Landscaping is a great place to start. Like the other Ortho's All About guides, Landscaping is great for general information. It talks about all the different rooms in the house, what you should do to which rooms, and the importance of keeping in mind the actual function of the room as you are landscaping. The book has more specific tasks inside, like how to use greenery to form a wall or ceiling, and how to build an arbor, but it is still best used as an information guide for choosing your greenery, like plants, trees, shrubs, and ground covers (any low growing plant that hugs the earth).

Landscaping's best asset is its pictures. The pictures are big, glossy, and colorful, with diagrams that are easy to follow. Landscaping also tells you how to take care of the greenery you choose. And at under a hundred pages, one does not get overwhelmed from too much information at once.

6. Ortho's All About: Lawns ($11.95)

When landscaping your home, one has to think about a lawn, and there is a lot more that goes into making a great lawn than you would think. According to Lawns, there are approximately 30,000,000 acres of lawn in the United States, and with this book you can learn how to make your lawn unique.

The first thing the book explains is the different classes of grass and what kind grows best in which parts of the country. Again, Ortho's' best asset is its pictures; big, glossy and colorful to help you separate the classes of grass visually. It is not just a great informational guide to help you choose your lawn, but also skillful in explaining how to maintain the class of grass you decide upon, including tips on mowing, watering, fertilizing, weeding and controlling pests and diseases. The pictures are also beneficial because they illustrate the different kinds of pests and diseases that can occur, so you can recognize them.

7. Gardening for Dummies, by Mike MacCaskey, with Bill Marken and the editors of the National Gardening Association ($19.99)

Gardening for Dummies is much more precisely detailed than anything from the Ortho's All About collection. With Gardening for Dummies you basically get the two Ortho's books rolled into one. However, again like its Home Remodeling counterpart, Gardening for Dummies crams so much information into one big book that things can get lost in the reading, making everything much harder to follow. The pictures are in black and white ink, which makes it more difficult to use as a guide. The only major benefit of Gardening for Dummies is the detail it gives on how to care for your garden and greenery, as well as the section on special gardens, where it talks about food gardens. Gardening for Dummies is easily accessible and is available at most bookstores.

Early Blooms: Get That Garden Growing

Here we are in March, not even an Easter Bunny in sight and already shoots of early bloomers are beginning to pop up. Blame it on our extremely unpredictable winter and mild temperatures, that are tricking plants into coming out of dormancy. I saw a tree the other day, too far to name but close enough to see blooms of pink and white flowers trying to make their debut. If we get hit with a blast of arctic air (and it's not too late to rule that out) our emerging plants are going to be in trouble. I have some in pots kept in a area safe from snow and upon close inspection yesterday I saw the new leaves pushing up. I added some pine needles to give them another layer of protection in addition to their mulch of leaves from the fall. You need to listen to the weather and cover these immature plants should there be a frost or temperature plunge below freezing. Even an overturned pot would help. Make sure you don't touch the delicate leaves and shoots with plastic. Uncover them the minute milder temperatures creep back up. If you neglect to do this, when the sun hits the plastic, you will cause the plant to rot, moisture will set in and cause a greenhouse effect.

Warmer weather also brings us out with our brooms and rakes to clear away winter debris. Remember to leave the plant covered. Don't rake away the natural mulch just yet. This is a good time for some indoor forcing of spring plants. Forsythia and Pussy Willow make great cuttings for indoor display and their buds can be cut and brought in for forcing. Cut long stems for a dramatic display and remember to cut on an angle and get into water as soon as possible. Shortly, you'll have a headstart on spring in your home. Another nice looking display is oat or rye grass set in a pretty pot near a window. Your local garden center has them available now. Just put some good potting soil in a decorative pot, sprinkle your seed on top (no need to cover it) and water lightly to get it going. Soon you will be rewarded with a pretty pasture. Water lightly when you see it getting dry. It can be trimmed with scissors to keep it neat looking or you can just let it grow to it's limit and flop over. This, by the way, is a great treat if you have a parakeet. I used to park the cage near the plant and let the little guy graze to his hearts content. You may also want to offer some to your dog or cat.

Now is a good time to get over to the garden center to start browsing for early spring seeds. You will want to get your seeds planted by next month for early summer display. Also, if you own an Ornamental Grass, March is the time to cut it back. Just use a hedge cutter or chain saw and remove all the upper part of the grass and go down to about 5 inches off the ground. If you were ahead of the game, you would have tied up the plant in the fall, this way it can be cut and removed easily. You can wrap a sheet around it and then cut to minimize the plant from throwing all it's pieces all over the nearby area. They can be really messy if not tied or controlled. You can also cut in to take some bulk from a mature Ornamental Grass. You need to do this on a regular basis to keep it in line.

Till next time.

Who's Minding the Castle?

The dot-com bubble has come and gone and your stockbroker, who is looking suspiciously brilliant ever since he recommended that you short Enron last summer, now suggests you pick up some great deals in the depressed market. But you have another idea.

Feeling just a little smug and flush with cash in the midst of what is undeniably a recession, you, buoyed by optimism, do what any sane person would do in your enviable position: go bargain hunting for some prime Hamptons real estate. And when the local agents tell you there really are no bargains because it's still a sellers' market since the banks are loaning money so freely, all that will change when you say, "Bank?" Who said anything about a 'bank'?"

Next thing you know, you're the proud owner of a modest 20,000-square foot 'cottage.' The architects have successfully erased all traces of the 80s and it now resembles an authentic English Cotswold that looks as though it's been in your family for years. The interior designers, who filled it with fashionably faded toilels and chintzes, have come and gone and, suddenly, after everyone leaves and the dust begins to settle (and you realize you don't even have a cleaning lady to vacuum it up), it hits you: Who's going to take care of all this?

In the early days of Hampton resortdom, a household staff was often acquired 'the old-fashioned way,' i.e., they were inherited with the house. But that was then. What about now?

First, to avoid looking foolish or, even worse, nouveau, landscaper to the cook, whereas a house manager is someone in charge of the ushers in a public movie theatre.

A houseman, on the other hand, is a worker (usually male) whose job is routine maintenance on a house or hotel. In and around a large house, many things can and frequently do go wrong, something you soon learn, and probably in the middle of the night. Your houseman, employed full or part-time, takes care of these annoying problems, which, if ignored, won't just go away.

A housekeeper, as opposed to a maid, is responsible for the daily running of a house, whereas maid usually refers to a woman servant, often the employee of a hotel. So remember, even though your house may rival Ira Rennert's in size, it's not a hotel unless you rent rooms for a fee. And if your fortunes turn and you actually decide to do this, make sure you get a permit from town hall first, or, besides being suddenly unpopular, you'll also go to jail.

Since you probably won't be doing your own cooking on those rare occasions when you are not eating out and living the high life on the Hamptons benefits circuit (you will be invited with the hope of a generous donation), you'll need the services of either a chef or cook. A chef is professionally trained or has professional experience, usually in a restaurant kitchen, and gets paid more than a cook. A cook's job is simply to prepare food. How to choose?

"Honey, did you lock the back door?"

learn the lingo. For instance, do you know the difference between a house manager and an estate manager? The answer has nothing to do with the difference between the size of a 'house' and an 'estate.' An estate manager is directly responsible for directing and controlling the staff of a private property, including everyone from the

Opening The Pool: What To Ask, What To Do

It is never too early to open your pool. Most people like to have their pools ready by Memorial Day weekend, but depending on the condition of your pool, getting it ready can take anywhere from two days to two weeks. The following are things to consider when you or your pool service opens the pool for the sunny days ahead:

1. Remove pool cover. There are several types of covers you can use from solid to soft to mesh, depending on your preference. If you used a solid cover, water may have gotten into the cover to clog it down, in which case you will need a pump that will help get the water out so you can pull it off.

2. Start the filter system.

3. Treat water with chemicals. The pool always needs a lot more chemicals in the beginning to make it swimmable. How much you use varies on the condition of the pool. What chemicals you need depends on the pH level of the pool when it is ready to open. The object is to balance it out until the water is at a basic pH level.

4. Vacuum and clean. If you used a soft cover, leaves and roughage from the fall and winter tend to get stuck in pockets of the cover and fall into the pool when taking it off, so cleaning and vacuuming may take a little longer than if you used a mesh or hard cover.

It is always better to open your pool before it gets too warm; otherwise the chemicals can potentially go bad. But after you open your pool, you have to maintain it.

The most important aspect of maintaining a pool is how to keep the chemicals balanced, because the chemicals are the most vital part of your pool. They keep it safe for swimming and too much chemicals can be dangerous. So how do you know if the chemicals are properly balanced? First, look at the color of the water. If the color is off, there is a good chance it has to do with a chemical imbalance. Unfortunately, this is not absolute, so get yourself a test kit to monitor the chlorine and pH levels of your pool. These levels should be monitored at least once a week. A test kit usually runs about $20.

It is also extremely important to keep an eye on the water level. Water level can affect how the equipment works and how well it is maintained. It can also affect the balance of the chemicals in the pool, so, throughout the summer, it is vital to watch the water level closely.

The last thing you have to look at is the filter equipment to make sure it is working properly. The best way to judge this is by looking at the water. If it is mucky and blurry, or if there are a lot of things floating around, the filter system may not be working properly.

At the end of the season the pool should not be drained unless a repair is needed, so you should not have to fill up your pool when it is time to get it ready for the summer. Because Long Island does not depend on reservoir water, a water shortage like today's will not impact the work of pool installation companies or how pool owners operate.

If you are planning to install a pool for the summer, the average vinyl pool runs anywhere from about $25,000 to $35,000, including equipment, retaining wall, and patio furnishings. A gunite pool (made of steel and concrete applied through a compressor) will run you about double as much. It is also necessary to get a permit before installing a pool. Most pool installation companies will take care of the paperwork for you, but it is a good idea to make sure of this before you sign a contract.

—Brian Zapin

Opening The Summer House

It is that time of year again, time to open the summerhouse. But what does one really need to do to get the house ready for the season? You should do everything you did to close it except in reverse. Here is a list of things you might have forgotten.

When you arrive, open the windows; the house needs fresh air. Air out each room individually, shutting doors if necessary to keep the loss of heat at a minimum. When you are opening windows check for holes and rips in the window screens. If you find flaws, send the screens out for repair or buy new ones while it is still cool enough for the windows to be shut. Later in the season, when the mosquitoes are out in full force, you will be glad you did.

For safety, check the batteries in the fire alarm. Cleaning the oil burner will keep your house from filling with smoke when you turn it on. Making sure your stove and oven are clean and free of debris will help reduce the risk of fire. And check to see that you have emergency numbers listed by the phone. This could save your life.

Dusting will keep allergies to a minimum. There are many people who are allergic to dust, so use a damp cloth to go over dusty areas and remove those pesky dust mites. Do not forget to dust under the beds, and, if present, remove any mold. Using a damp cloth will trap the dust, but remember to dust slowly so less dust escapes into the air.

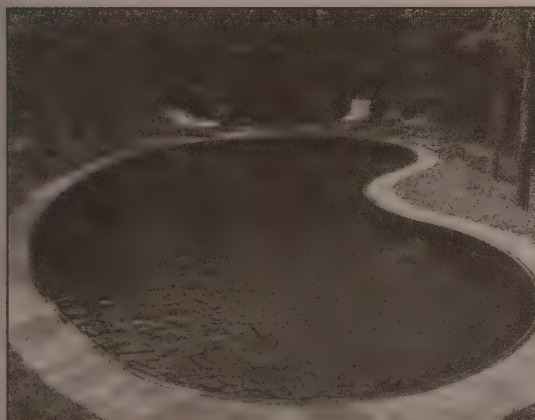

The spice rack is an important part of the kitchen, so when you make out your grocery list be sure to include

Do you prefer duck confit or roast chicken, tarte tatin or apple pie? Très different, non?

Aside from someone to clean and care for you and yours, you will also need to consider who will be minding hearth and home when you are not there (which, unfortunately, will probably be most of the time). If you cannot afford full time, live-in help, or if you are just thrifty by nature (most old money is, that's how it grew old in the first place), you may want to consider hiring a house watcher who routinely checks your house and grounds for signs of tampering. A house watching service, especially in conjunction with a professionally installed alarm system, is a very effective way to protect even vacant property.

So now that you've decided exactly what help you're looking for, where do you find them?

The best way, of course, is through word of mouth. Ask around at the club, inquire of neighbors or ask Hampton-bound co-workers at the office. Word has a way of getting around and agencies or individuals that do good and reliable work quickly acquire good reputations.

You might also try asking the real estate agent that sold you the property. Agents and brokers usually know a lot of people and will often be more than happy to point you in the right direction. The service directories of local papers are also a good place to look. Local companies tend to know the area well and can advise you of any potential problems and how to avoid them. Want to know which alarm company is the most popular? Just take a drive around and check out the little signs posted at the entrances to driveways grand and small.

If all of this sounds a bit complicated, remember that the trappings of wealth, castles included, bring with them attendant responsibilities as well as privilege. By the way, did I mention where to find drawbridges and moats?

any spices or seasonings that you may need. Also, now is the time to make sure the grill is in working order. There is nothing worse than having everything ready for a barbecue and not being able to light the grill.

Check the basement for insects and vermin. During the cold winter small animals may choose your empty house as their winter abode, so do a thorough check of the basement and attic. Be suspicious: look for droppings, bits of food and things that have been chewed through. If you find evidence of invasion, call your local pest removal service and they will be happy to assist you. Don't forget to look up and not just down, because bats like basements and attics, too.

Do you have emergency supplies? Every house needs a few flashlights, batteries, candles and matches, a hammer, screwdriver and other miscellaneous tools. A first aid kit with bandages of various sizes, antiseptic cream, alcohol and aloe is an absolute necessity. Buy new bottles of sunscreen because it can expire and lose its potency. Insect repellent and calamine lotion will be useful if you plan to be outside often.

New books and magazines will help you stock up on beach reading and give your coffee table a new look. Every summerhouse needs new reading every season. Try local bookstores for books on local history, architecture and culture. Your summer guests will love them.

How much did you drink last summer? Re-stocking the bar is essential. Consider the ingredients necessary to make the latest trendy drinks if your bar is mostly for company or parties. But always keep the basic ingredients of classic drinks around.

Opening the house for the season is a perfect excuse to go shopping. Look around your home. Do you hate your dishes or your towels? Buy now before you have to endure another season with domestic necessities you deplore. The later in the season it gets, the more you will put it off.

The beginning of the season is upon us and if you follow these tips you should have a hassle-free summer.

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

February has come and gone and with it, Black History Month. Yet exhibits featuring African-American themes and artists remain, even into March, at two Maryland colleges. While these institutions are not in the Hamptons, they represent the typical exposure that the subject matter gets via an academic venue situated near a major city (Washington, D.C.).

Fredericks Hood College is a well-known women's institution (voted best in its category for years); Frederick Community College is a thriving place, characterizing the growth of similar two-year establishments. Both have art departments, although Hood's is more established and comprehensive.

The quality of work reflects this in its show, "Art as a Vehicle for Raising Social Awareness," by artist Mike Easton.

We would have liked the exhibit's title to be a little less comprehensive, but the work itself is strong and succinct. The pieces deal with conceptual generalities like the show's title, but we can't all resemble Andrian Piper, an internationally-known artist who makes points about the black experience in very precise, personal ways.

Mr. Easton's images are clear enough. Using recognizable symbols, even iconic ones, his message stands out: the isolation, fragmentation and submersion of the Negro, often within the context of American idealism.

For example, there is the mixed medium piece "We Hold These Truths," which features an American flag with strands of black hair incorporated into it. (These same strands serve as a visual motif in several works.)

Another mixed medium endeavor, "Made in America," has a small photo with black soldiers as part of its structure. Both works reinforce the idea that blacks may have formed the "fabric" of America, but they are soon forgotten.

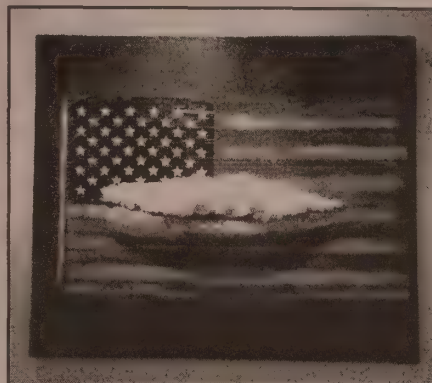

A third work shows the American flag; a pile of cotton lies in the center. (Again, cotton and hair signifying the black's contribution to American life.)

Other images fragment the African-American experience: nearly faceless figures standing behind a window, each pane cutting the people into small parts. Our favorite, however, was an impressionistic image of a tree. At first glance, it seems out-of-place. What's the social message here? Then we see the subtle figures of bodies hanging from the tree limbs. Again, the notion of incorporation, this time into the "fabric" of nature, not the democratic process (symbolized by the flag). This is a potent idea, indeed.

Frederick Community College's "Expressions in African American Art" reflected a second local show. While this as a group show lacked focus, the abstract works showed the most promise. These included Michael Pinnix's "Fool With Love," a small dainty colorful collage, and "Medicine Gourd."

The figurative works were not as successful, but we did like Darian Robbins' "Cosmic Feeling." The artist's "Red, White and the Blues" featuring two figures in a field, was also interesting, resulting from its representational style.

HONORING THE ARTIST: JOSEPH MICHETTI

This week's cover, "The Knickerbocker," is pretty indicative of its artist, Joseph Michetti. East Meadow resident Michetti is usually attracted to nostalgic objects that literally shine: glass and reflections. The cover certainly does that, featuring bottles, which can be seen any day of the week at a real life restaurant located on Eleventh Street and University Place in New York City. And the eating establishment represents an old landmark near Washington Square, a Michetti favorite since the time he exhibited his work nearby.

Mr. Michetti's penchant for nostalgia and reflections is often reserved for his current work, however. Comic books with Superman and Batman on their covers, diverse toys. "I find nostalgic images visually interesting," Mr. Michetti explains. "But 'The Knickerbocker' painting represents the opposite end of the spectrum for me. It's a dark piece, color-wise. My work is the fun type. I want people to look at my paintings and feel happy about them."

Mr. Michetti is no stranger to what he terms "a dark piece." In fact, when he just started painting some thirty years ago, his work was entirely different from what it is today. Since retiring from the telephone company in 1991, however, Mr. Michetti developed a new lease on life and started painting again. "In 1991, I went back to art, doing beach scenes and landscapes. I also did motorcycles and cars where chrome was a focus, a reflection. That was really

The Dan's Papers They Made The Movie Here Film Festival Spring 2002

On Saturday March 23 at 2 p.m. at Southampton College, Dan's Papers THEY MADE THE MOVIE HERE FREE (Yes, no admission fee) FILM FESTIVAL begins its 7th year of presenting films FOR the people of the East End, made by East End people and FEATURING the East End itself – the hills, the buildings, the beaches and, the local, good lookin' denizens, that have had the world oohing and aahing since Valentino's Sheik rode the Amagansett dunes and Shirley Temple's Little Dutch Girl sang with Bridgehampton's windmills backing her up. Besides entertaining you, we hope to encourage filmmakers to entertain the idea of producing more movies here. Spread the word.

The first week's movie is a HOOT- AND-A-HOLLER HORROR cult favorite, The Flesh Eaters

It is guaranteed to induce gulps and gasps, sighs and screams, stomach turns and belly laughs. This is the film that gave Dan Rattiner the bright idea for the festival, when he served back in 1964, as an intern on the movie that made Montauk a desert island where unspeakable things develop! Dan's film festival idea is growing as big as those unspeakables. But You and I will discuss movies! Let the gore begin!

The movie opens peacefully with a snappy little cruiser, what I wanted to do. Chrome and glass, not clouds but mechanical things. People call my style photo-realism, but I'm not much for labels. If I have to describe myself, I'd say I was a contemporary realist. I don't work in series; I don't like to repeat myself. I see what I like and paint it, whatever I feel will make people happy, whatever people can relate to."

People have related to a variety of Mr. Michetti's subjects, including Times Square with its Coca-Cola sign and the Brooklyn Bridge facing the Twin Towers. "I took a photograph of the Brooklyn Bridge three years ago," Mr. Michetti recalls. "After September 11, I went back to complete it. I was always going to do it."

The Flesh Eaters

bobbing on sparkly, black and white, offshore waters. The camera moves in on a bikini clad (barely) damsel. Her boyfriend appears and playfully tugs at her bra top. She pulls away and the bra remains clasped in his lascivious fingers. She modestly dives into the water. He follows, bra still clenched in his fingers. He laughs; she laughs; they cavort. Suddenly, she's aware of something around her, she lifts her hand – blood! She screams; he screams . . . they're pulled under.

The handsome pilot of a seaplane service. He's talked (or moneyed) in spite of a pending storm, into flying two women (a sexy blond and her boss, a bossy well-known actress) to a film location. Of course, the plane goes down on some unknown island. There they encounter a skeleton that must have gone missing from some high school science class, because it is pure, plastic white, neatly wired together. But, NO! It's the sexy chap from the boat! How do we know? He's still grasping the bra! (Some lovers never give up.)

blood rises, as does her bosom. The actress is jealous of her buxom assistant so, unbuttons her blouse and does push-ups in her bra, while demanding her case of booze. Suddenly! they are frightened by a masked man walking towards them. Seems they have never seen a man in scuba gear before. Nonetheless they should be frightened because it is Martin Kosleck, who, in 40s and 50s movies, was always a leering, cruel and sadistic Nazi! Oh, heavens! He hasn't changed, at all.

That was just the beginning! COME! SEE! ENJOY! The Flesh Eaters! You'll see those ravenous little devils, you'll see blood, you'll see terror, you'll see Montauk's well-sanded beaches and dunes, you'll see well-filled bras, and high hopes for a happy ending, high camp, high tide and a high actress get hers. We'll see you there, I'm your horrified host, Guy-Jean de Fraumeni, assisted by Lise Visser. (Dan will be there too.) Southampton College's facilities generously accommodated by Dean James La Rocca and Prof. John Reilly. For reservations call Dan's Papers, 537-0500.

Guy-Jean de Fraumeni is the producer/writer/director of award winning European and American feature films. He has been a judge at major Film and TV award competitions, including the Oscars, the Emmys and various film festivals. He is assisted by Sarah Halsey.

Apparently Mr. Michetti likes city scenes because he's also done a painting in a Brooklyn deli, as seen by someone looking into its window. There's that sense of reflection again. And the idea of intimacy, of connecting to a place.

Let's go back to Mr. Michetti's current pieces featuring comic books. There are the vibrant colors and a sense of fun that the artist likes to convey. "I actually borrowed the comics from a neighbor. I really don't collect them myself, but here they were as a result of a garage sale," he explains. "In one work, I painted a pile of comics with Captain Marvel's image on top."

While this particular piece doesn't seem to resemble Mr. Michetti's Knickerbocker Restaurant, there remains a similar connection with the images, a common sense of voyeurism and a feeling of both inanimate objects and a human presence.

When Mr. Michetti isn't painting, he's pursuing another favorite activity: travel to places like Nova Scotia and Bermuda. Mr. Michetti's voice sounds relaxed when he recalls taking his whole family, including his three daughters and grandchildren, on a cruise to Bermuda. The obvious question was did he attempt to paint the scenery while he was there? "No way," the artist answers quickly.

Mr. Michetti's work can be seen at Rhino Gallery, Franklin Square. His website is: www.michettiart.com

SOUTHAMPTON COLLEGE PROUDLY PRESENTS THE DAN'S PAPERS THEY MADE THE MOVIE HERE FILM FESTIVAL

Saturday March 23 - THE FLESH EATERS

A cult classic of horror movie fanatics. This is the film that inspired The Dan's Paper's They Made The Movie Here Film Festival. Back in 1964, Dan was an intern on the set . . . the beach at Montauk.

March 30 - Closed for Easter RECESS

Saturday April 6 - POLLOCK

The critically acclaimed, ultimate East End film by dedicated producer, director and star, Ed Harris, traces the career of artist, Jackson Pollock and the Hampton's environment that nurtured his work. A chance to see it again . . . and discuss it.

Saturday April 13 - ON THE ROCKS

A comedy of coffee, cocktails and carnal lust as a cure for two socialites headaches of rejection. The background for all the lovely screwball action is, naturally, the gorgeous Hampton's . . . the home of the film's producer, director and star, Heather Buchanan.

Saturday April 20 - WHISPERS IN THE DARK

Murders more than wicked! They are rife with psychopathia sexualis, bondage, sadism and explicit nudity . . . all strung out with chills and thrills. The kinky doings include (would you believe?) nice guy Alan Alda and his extra nice town, Water Mill. Movie starting at 2:30.

Saturday April 27- EVERYONE SAYS I LOVE YOU

Gotta' have a Woody Allen (Hamptons-on-film enthusiast) selection. This is his tuneful tribute to 1940 musicals with a dreamy-team cast of loving couples, Julia Roberts and Woody, Drew Barrymore and Edward Norton, Featuring films that either take place on Long Island or were filmed here.

Goldie Hawn and Alan Alda make off-key love, trouble and music as they sing their way through places like New York City, Venice and Southampton.

Saturday May 4 - THE FAN

Film and stage legend, Lauren Bacall's most controversial film. As a Broadway star stalked by an extremely psychotic admirer, Ms. Bacall exhibits both her dramatic and musical talents. Featured are James Garner and Maureen Stapleton and the Hamptons. Movie starting at 2:30.

Saturday May 11 - SHE'S THE ONE

Long Island's own triple-threat film maker, Edward Burn's follow-up of his winning, The Brothers McMullen, delivers more of his sage wit, funny and serious situations and winning performances by Jennifer Aniston, Cameron Diaz and naturally, himself and The Island.

Saturday May 25 - GREY GARDENS

Back by popular demand, this somewhat shocking documentary remains compellingly poetic and touching. It captures a bit of the later years of Edith Bouvier Beale and her daughter, Edie (aunt and cousin of Jacqueline Onassis) filmed in their decaying, overgrown mansion in East Hampton. A hauntingly memorable experience.

Guy de Fraumeni's HOLLYWOOD in The Hamptons

I'm dazed and somewhat shell shocked – not from the number of beached clam and horseshoe crabs vacated homes but by the number of mind-deafening ultra-realistic war movies storming our dormant shores. The grim reminders of wars we cannot forget, have me thinking that Steven Spielberg, who inspired the onslaught, might be considering barbed wire and cement bunkers on the beaches fronting his property, since movie-makers have been beating (with every weapon in the book) an explosive path to his doorway. The same door he flung open with his explicit, D-Day landing, opening scenes of Saving Private Ryan. Those shocking but poetic few minutes gave real urgency to his earnest honoring of the combatants of World War II. What followed the brilliant segment were, to my mind, a rehashing of very familiar, similar movies of the 40s and 50s. Never-mind,

We Were Soldiers

Mr. Spielberg earned his hash-marks and continues to be honored and flattered by an army of imitators.

The most current warfront revisitation, We Were Soldiers, seems truer and wiser than most. Perhaps because it's based on an actual account by Lieutenant General Harold Moore, of an early, bloody battle in the Vietnam War. Desperately fought by both sides, it plays down vainglory and, instead, portrays war as the despicable, mindless contest it is.

Its single core of real romance is set forth during training by Lieutenant Colonel Moore to his men. "War is what home was always supposed to be! Meaning that, in battle, they will look out for each other in unquestioning basic sacrificial devotion." With Mel Gibson very much Col. Moore, he leads the men and the film with a quiet, sincere and disciplined performance, balancing the extreme violence and the thoroughly inane homefront scenes picturing wives as "Stepford" dolls concerned about their water breaking.

It is not the ultimate movie of the wars controversy, but nonetheless it depicts heroism in ways designed to provoke contemplation. War is hell and it's a hot ticket.

Guy-Jean de Fraumeni is the producer/writer/director of award-winning European and American feature films. He has been a judge at major Film and TV award competitions including the Oscars, the Emmys and various film festivals. He is assisted by Sarah Halsey.

ED KOCH Goes To THE MOVIES

Borstal Boy (+)

I love films with an Irish theme or setting. The script of this film is based on an autobiographical book written by Brendan Behan about his youth and the time he spent in Borstal, a British reformatory for adolescents. I haven't read the book so I can't say who is at fault - author or scriptwriter - in conveying a weak story. Nevertheless, since most of the current movies are pretty bad, keep this one on your list of acceptable films to see.

Shawn Hatosy is excellent in the role of Brendan Behan. One caveat: he speaks too softly, at least for me, and the brogues are so thick, the movie could have used subtitles.

We meet Brendan leaving Ireland for England. He is a member of the IRA carrying explosives with him to commit a terrorist act. He is apprehended, and when the cops arrest him they call him Paddy, the equivalent of the N word for the Irish. He has a number of adventures in the reformatory. He is physically assaulted, solicited for sex by another adolescent, tries to escape, is introduced to the writings of Oscar Wilde and puts on a play. Behan's character rings true.

By the way, Behan used to hang out at the White Horse Bar on Hudson Street at the corner of Bank Street in Manhattan. The bar has great outdoor seating which you should keep in mind as the summer approaches.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

At Passover, the Seder table, meaning a sequence of order, is an intimate family celebration. This year the eight-day holiday begins Thursday, March 28, when the story of the exodus of the Jewish people is told through symbolic foods.

Since leaven, such as flour, yeast and baking powder is prohibited during this period, matzoh and matzoh meal become the basis for many Passover dishes. Few cooks veer from their traditional favorites for the ritual meal. Preserving one's heritage, after all, is an important part of the celebration.

A personal favorite is pastel con carne, a Sephardic meat pie with matzoh. An aromatic mix of ground beef, onions, eggs, parsley and spices is sandwiched between layers of moistened matzoh and baked. It is served "lasagna style" in small squares and is truly delicious.

Leek, an age-old vegetable, is known to have been cultivated in ancient Egypt. It is reported that leeks were among the rations of the workers who built the pyramids and the Israelites, upon fleeing that country, regretted bitterly in the desert "the cucumbers, and the melons and the leeks" they had left behind. How fitting then that leeks fit into the cultural dishes of Passover. Whole lengths of leek are blanched until tender. The long individual leaves, resembling a bride's veil, hence the name novias meaning bride in Spanish, is rolled up around a savory beef mixture and baked with a bit of broth.

An occasional break with tradition will add a bit of dazzle to your ceremonial meal.

PASTEL CON CARNE FOR PASSOVER

I cherish my mother's heirloom dishes and pastel con carne is a particular favorite for Passover. Matzos are briefly dipped in water to soften slightly then sandwiched with a savory meat mixture, aromatic with spices. After baking cut it into small 2-inch squares for serving much like lasagna. The dish is served as a separate course.

Serves 10-12

2-3 tablespoons vegetable oil
4 medium onions, finely chopped
2 pounds ground beef chuck
1 teaspoon coarse (kosher) salt
Freshly ground pepper
1 tablespoon tomato paste
1/3 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/8 teaspoon allspice
1 cup finely chopped flat-leaf Italian parsley
4 eggs, lightly beaten
8-9 matzos
1/2-2/3 cup chicken broth

1. Heat oil in a 12-inch skillet, saute onions until tender, about 10 minutes, do not brown. Add meat and saute, stirring occasionally, until it loses its red color. Add salt, pepper, spices and parsley and stir to mix. Remove from heat and when cool stir in the beaten eggs until thoroughly incorporated. Taste for seasoning.

2. Prepare a bowl, large enough to hold the matzos and a greased baking dish (9 x 13-inch Pyrex). Pour enough water in the bowl to soak the matzos. Soak 2 at a time for 30-40 seconds (the matzos will fall apart if soaked too long). Line the greased baking pan with the moistened matzo. Layer up to 4-5 matzos to create a base for the meat mixture. Spread the meat evenly over the matzo layers. Soak 4-5 more matzos, 2 at a time and cover the meat completely. This procedure can be prepared up to one day ahead. Cover with foil securing the edges and refrigerate until ready to serve.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

3. When ready to bake the pastel, uncover and bring it to room temperature. Pour over 1/2-2/3 cup chicken broth to moisten and bake in preheated oven for 25-30 minutes. If top is browning too fast, tent with foil. Cut into small squares and serve hot.

NOVIAS

*Halved lengths of leeks are cooked until tender. Each leaf is separated so that it resembles a long white veil, hence the name Novias, meaning bride in Spanish. The leaves are then stuffed, rolled up and baked. The stuffed poached leeks in broth are absolutely luscious
About 26 rolls*

2 large leek, at least 1-inch around in diameter
Coarse (kosher) salt
1 pound ground meat
1 beaten egg
2 cloves garlic, finely minced
1/4 cup chopped flat-leaf Italian parsley
1 tablespoon matzo meal
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1/3 cup chicken broth

1. Select leeks with root end intact and at least 2-3 inches of white at the base. Discard any bruised outer leaves. At a 90-degree angle place your knife above the white of the leek cutting away the dark green portion exposing the pale interior. Hold each leek at the root end and split lengthwise. Rinse the leeks in cold running water then soak in a bowl of clean water for 15 minutes to assure removal of sand.

2. Meanwhile combine meat, egg, garlic, parsley, matzo meal and salt and pepper in a bowl and stir to mix thoroughly.

3. Bring a saucepan of water, large enough to hold the leeks, to the boil. Add salt and the leeks, and simmer briskly for 4-5 minutes. Drain and rinse leeks under cool running water to stop the cooking. Squeeze out excess water by running the palm of your hand over the length of each leek to dry them well then roll in a clean kitchen towel to absorb excess moisture. Cut off and discard root ends.

4. Separate the leaves and spread a few at a time on a work surface. Place about 1 1/2 rounded teaspoon of meat mixture at the base and roll up to the end of each leaf. Place in a lightly greased Pyrex baking dish, side by side, until all are done. Pour over broth and cover securely with foil, shiny side down. Can be prepared up to one day ahead to this point. Refrigerate as necessary and bring to room temperature before baking.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees.

5. Bake on middle shelf of oven for 20 minutes. Serve 2-3 rolls per person as a separate course and strain some of the pan juices over them. Serve hot.

Dining in The Hamptons

Here it is, folks, the first new restaurant of the season — and it sounds like a live one. It's going to be called Oasis Waterfront Restaurant and Bar and it'll be at the site of the former Mill Creek Inn on Noyac Road. Oasis is the brainchild of chef John Donnelly, his wife Gina Donnelly, and Sag Harbor residents Lou and Kerri Dollinger. The Donnellys are real hospitality heavyweights — John Donnelly has worked for the Drake Swissotel, the Regal U.N. Plaza and the Helmsley Park Lane Hotel and Gina Donnelly is the chief concierge at Manhattan's SoHo Grand Hotel. The concept is a "modern beach club" — rattan furniture, potted palms and a view of Noyac Harbor (ah, summer). The food will be modern American with an emphasis on seafood — Chef Donnelly's signature dish will be an East End bouillabaisse. Entrees will range from $17 to $30. A mid-May opening is planned and they're going to serve dinner seven days a week. Noyac night owls, take note: the bar will be open until 2 a.m. and they'll have late night dining, too.

Want to know who's slated to participate in this year's Taste of the Nation so far? You got it — at press time it's Saracen, DM Cuisine, Igourmet.com, Brown Bag, Twice Upon a Bagel, Pacific East, Barefoot Contessa, Art of Eating, Star Room, Rubi Red, George Martin, Old Stone Market, Paul Evans Caterers, and The Maidstone Arms. There will be many more so watch this column for the latest! The event's at Saracen on April 21, and it's a brunch this year from 1-5 p.m.. For tickets call Nan Noel at 324-4181.

If you're reading this on Friday, March 22, you're not too late for Star Room's wine dinner tonight at 7:30 p.m. featuring wines from the Sokol Blosser vineyard in Oregon's Willamette Valley. Exec chef Kevin Penner's five-course menu includes a main course of Red Roast Quail "Sawtow" and Water Chestnuts. This is the first in a series of five Friday night wine dinners and next week, March 29, will be the Kobrand Portfolio of Maison Louis Jadot.

You can pretend you're a big game hunter at Tierra Mar's next wine dinner without actually having to shoot anything. The dinner features "North American Game and Bison." On the menu are antelope, venison, wild boar, and "free roaming bison." Do the "wild thing" and call 288-2700 for reservations. You can also visit Tierra for Passover dinner. They'll be preparing Passover Seder dinners for the holiday on March 27, 28, and 29. The five-course meal includes a traditional seder plate, soup, appetizer and a main course of spring lamb stew with colorful vegetables and noodle kugel with mushrooms. Dessert is Passover almond cake with strawberry sauce.

Winter "steals and deals": The amazing sunset views from The Coast Grill in Southampton have just gotten better. On Sundays, when you purchase an entrée, you will also get a choice of a complimentary appetizer and a complimentary dessert. Dinner begins at 5 p.m. on Sundays. Until March 24, George Martin's $23.95 three-course nightly prix fixe will feature an entrée of corned beef, cabbage and mashed potatoes in honor of St. Patrick's Day. There's a choice of appetizer and dessert.

East Hampton Point Restaurant on Three Mile Harbor Road is re-opening for its TENTH season! Dinner is served on Friday and Saturday, March 29 and 30 at 6 p.m. Look for a special "Spring Tasting Menu" that will be offered featuring Chef Ross's new three course dinner menu for $35. Easter Sunday, March 31, there will be a special holiday buffet from noon to 3 p.m. the Easter bunny will be passing out Easter treats for all the little ones. Reservations call 329-2800.

Talented young chef Jason Weiner of Almond Bar & Restaurant in Bridgehampton will be cooking at The James Beard House in NYC on Friday, April 5 at noon, as part of the "First Friday Luncheon Series." The lunch will feature four courses plus hors d'oeuvres to start and each course is paired with wine. The cost is $55 for members and $65 for non-members. Call 212-675-4984 for tickets.

The dish hears that...

Alec Baldwin dined at the Maidstone Arms last week with Estia owners Colin and Jessica Ambrose and Amagansett Wines and Spirits owner Michael Cinque. They were enjoying the "Cuisine of Normandy" wine dinner (by the way, don't forget the last "Tour de France" wine dinner is March 24 and features the cuisine of Provence). The Taste of the Hamptons benefit for Share Our Strength will be on June 29 year and will again be at the lovely Wolfer Estate. This year's honoree is Bridgehampton National Bank.

Dining in the HAMPTONS

Ode To Bridgehampton Chicken Salad

God hath given mortals no greater treat,
Than the blissful union of tender chicken meat,
Celery, salt and a touch of mayo,
Sourdough bread, lettuce and tomato.

Whether chopped or sliced or even shredded,
You may be wondering where this poem is headed.
No greater pleasure awaits a hungry luncher,
A special snack for the late night muncher.

Odysseus set out in search of chicken salad,
And hence we have Homer's masterful ballad.
But where is the chicken on nearer shores,
Where's the chicken salad in Bridgehampton stores?

Bridgehampton Deli

Unique to Bridgehampton chicken salad styling, the deli tends towards the classic diced bite-size pieces of chicken and their use of mayonnaise is very regimented. They use celery, as any chicken salad enthusiast can tell you this is vital, and their servings are generous without being overwhelming.

Mickey B's

The Chicken salad here is dangerous. The Mickey's crew is mayo maniacs and they work in high shred mode with the chicken. The taste is sublime, but be warned, eat one of these generous portioned sandwiches too fast and you'll be feeling the effects. Go slow, go easy and enjoy.

Razzano's Restaurant

Just talk to Lou and you'll be a happy feaster; the portions are impeccable. Razzano's takes a thoughtful approach to chicken salad. They work in the shredded style but they create a balance between finely shredded and large chunks of chicken. This produces an ingenious balance of texture and flavor.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

About Face....with Annette

Lions & Tigers & Sleeveless, Oh My!!

Well, it's coming and with the weather behaving the way it has been, we may be seeing it a lot sooner than we think - Summer! The temps will be rising and if you haven't already begun to get the short sleeves out of storage, you will be soon. How many of you would rather be confronted with lions, tiger and bears than to be seen in a sleeveless top, even in the heat? How many of us walk around in sweltering heat with long sleeve shirts, trying to cover those 'out of shape' upper arms? How many of us are wearing long skirts and pants because you don't want anyone to see varicose veins? Well, suffer no more. You're about to learn a fashion tip that will transform the summer heat.

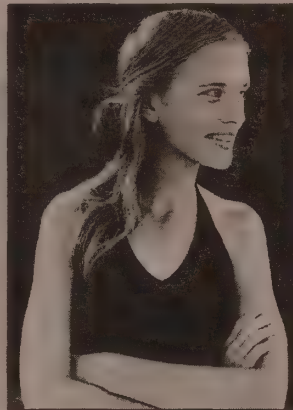

One of the fashion concepts that we know is true no matter what size you are, is that the eye is drawn to light and bright colors before dark colors and patterns before solids. This means that any place on the body that you want to emphasize you would put a light color, a bright color or a pattern. It also means that any place on the body that you want to de-emphasize you would put a dark color or a solid. However, did you realize that the same concepts that apply to our clothes also apply to our bodies?

Your arm is a solid color. To make certain that the viewer is not looking at your upper arms, you must first decide what colors are lighter or brighter than the color of your arms and then these are the colors you can wear in a sleeveless top. If you have extremely light arms you will choose a patterned sleeveless top since a pattern draws the viewer's attention faster than the solid color of your arm. If you are extremely fair, I would suggest a large patterned top with a white background, just to play it safe. If you have varicose veins you already have a natural pattern on your leg. You should not go for solid colored shorts since the viewer will be drawn to the pattern on your leg before the solid of the short. Instead, chose a short with a larger and lighter pattern.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

Fat-Be-Gone In A Bottle... Not Exactly

Sunday, 11:24 p.m., channel 32. An excited announcer's voice: "This is the miracle you have been looking for. In weeks that belly will be gone and you'll be looking fitter and trimmer than you ever thought you could." Before and after pictures of a man's enormous hairy, pasty-white stomach and then his buff, tanned hairless stomach just weeks later flash across the screen. "This product is guaranteed to shed those unwanted pounds. Just call 1-800-Fatbuster and for the one-time low price of $59.95 we'll send you a six-month supply. That's right, you get two-months worth of Fatbuster for free." More shots of perfect abs and a man and woman standing together in workout clothes. The screen fades to blue and the address, phone number and a small picture of the bottle of pills appear with the assurance that the company accepts all major credit cards.

Such is the public face of a multibillion-dollar industry that sells such creatively named products as Cytodyne Xenadrine, Metabolift, EAS Betalean, Twinlab CLA Fuel and Liquid Clenbutrx. All of these products - available as pills and liquids - promise that ever so enticing dream of a healthy looking body without all the workouts. Based on their claims, it seems so simple: speed up your metabolism and burn the fat, no hassles and no worries.

Unfortunately, the mechanics and medicinal properties of these products don't necessarily bear out the claims. The term "fat burner" is at best a loose definition of a medication that increases your metabolism thereby burning the excess calories that you consume before they can be stored as fat. In theory, it seems like a great solution, in practice there isn't enough evidence of the long-term safety and efficacy of the products to warrant their use.

The vast majority of these products contain ephedrine, caffeine, pseudoephedrine or norephedrine, all of which serve to speed up the metabolism, but can cause side effects ranging from jitteriness and nervousness to heart attacks and seizures. Ephedrine, which is a Chinese herb known as mahuang, has been associated with a number of deaths and the Food and Drug Administration has issued warnings about its use. Further, the arbitrary combination of these substances can have more serious consequences than if any one of the substances is taken alone. With little or no regulation by the F.D.A., these products are as easy to obtain as vitamins and the public has little knowledge about the serious side effects they can have. And there have been few, if any, long-term studies to demonstrate that the use of these products is safe and effective.

By some estimates, 60% of the American adult population is overweight - a staggering and worrisome figure - and this nation's children are not far behind its adults. As much as a quick fix is appealing, it is not a solution. Though some of the products that promise weight loss without the work may have short term benefits, in the long run they don't address the core problem, nor do they make you any healthier by providing cardiac exercise. To drop those unwanted pounds there really is only one solution: eat right and exercise. So put down the credit card and lace up your running shoes.

Exercise and resistance training are the best ways to get well defined abdominals and a beach-ready body by summer. Just twenty minutes a day of cardio exercise followed by an ab work out will get you noticeable results in less than two weeks.

How many times have you lain on the floor wondering if your crunches are doing anything? There are a variety of tried and true moves to get you a flatter middle. Start by lying on your back with your knees bent at 90 degrees. Slowly bring your knees toward your chin as you lift your shoulder blades off the ground. Exhale through your mouth as you contract your abdominal muscles. Start with sets of ten and work your way up to sets of twenty-five with a minute rest in between.

Dan's Papers 1st Annual Pizza Essay Contest

Dan's Papers is in search of the best pizza on the East End. Rather than go out and eat pizza until we can't see straight, we have decided to call upon our readers to help us in the search. We are accepting submissions, prose or poetry, forty words or less, about your favorite spot for pizza on the East End. Write about the cheese, ruminate on the crust, just keep it short and sweet. The best essays will be published in the paper and the winner will receive a pizza from the restaurant they have immortalized in print. Dan himself will deliver the pizza to the winner's home. Entries should be mailed to: Pizza Contest, Dan's Papers, P.O. Box 630, Bridgehampton NY. 11932. Or emailed to: editor@danspapers.com before midnight, March 24, 2002. The winner will be announced in our April 5 issue, with delivery arrangements made at that time.

POLICE BLOTTER

E.T.'s coming out this weekend! Unfortunately, he won't be able to phone home if he's using a pay phone in East Hampton. Last week, a Pantigo Place phone was beaten to death with a hammer. It is suspected that the poor piece of machinery was caught in the crossfire when Alissa Milano caught someone not dialing 1-800-COLLECT. A fire was discovered at a Springs payphone outside of Barnes store. The owner of the fine establishment was able to put out the small blaze before Carrot Top showed up.

With all the cop shows on TV (even Fox alone) you'd think people would wise up and stop running from the police. One guy who hasn't caught on yet was caught up to by Southampton Town cops and arrested and charged with misdemeanor resisting arrest, speeding and leaving the scene of an accident with property damage. The 47-year-old Southold resident started his rap sheet when State Police spotted him speeding on Flanders Road. Once Town Police spotted the suspect, he began to run, taking officers on an eight-mile car chase. As they neared Goodrich Avenue, the man got into a car accident before getting out of his car and running into the woods. Police caught up to him on foot and, after a brief scuffle, cuffed him and took him into custody. After the rather lenient charges were filed by Town Police, State Police pressed 24 additional charges, both traffic and vehicle related.

Another dirt bag on the run was caught with the help of store surveillance cameras. A 34-year-old Hampton Bays man was arrested twice in two days for misdemeanor petty larceny. On March 6 Southampton Town Police arrested him on Montauk Highway for the theft of two 12 packs of beer from the Canoe Place Mobil station in Hampton Bays. Through further investigation and studies of Macy's surveillance tapes, he was arrested the next day for stealing four men's coats from the Hampton Bays department store.

One thieving suspect, who is still at large, made an Ebonics-like comment to a cab driver that was delivering him somewhere in Flanders. The cabby told police that when he stopped his car the man, described as a heavy-set black male wearing a Raiders jacket and red bandana, took off after telling him that he didn't want to be "creeping through the 'hood in no loud-ass taxi." Failure to pay his cab fare has earned the man a spot on the wanted list.

More interesting comments were reported to police last week. A Flanders man told police that a 34-year-old man pointed at him and said, "I'm going to make those glasses contact lenses!" He wasn't referring to the wonders of laser eye surgery, but was actually threatening the man with his comment. Police eyed him as a threat and arrested him.

Let it be known: the phrase "Tighten my pipes" does not mean to actually tighten a leaky pipe, nor anything involving body parts and sensuality. Apparently in plumber lingo it translates to, "Refinish my entire bathroom and leave the bill on the kitchen table." An Amagansett resident found this out the hard way after hiring a plumber to tighten a leaky pipe while she was away on vacation. When she returned, she found a bill for $8,500 for a totally refinished bathroom. After the contractor was confronted with the issue, he returned with a notice of lien, two animal skulls and some rat poison. Sounds like this guy's career is going down the drain.

Dan's LETTERS

DUTCH TREAT

Dear Dan,

Wonderful story about Sherlock Holmes and the Ammon murder. Enjoyed it very much. But solving a murder is in the details. Heineken is THE Dutch beer brand. Not German. (They'd wish!) And since Heineken is not sold everywhere in the US, it might give another twist to it?

Anna van Wittenberghe
Amagansett
Via E-mail

I'll tell the inspector. -D.R.

HELPING HAND FOR THE HEROES

Dear Dan,

If possible would you please consider publishing the following message in your paper. I know for sure the couple I'm about to refer to reads your paper and they have gone out of their way to show how much they appreciated what the rescue workers at the WTC have done.

This note is a very special thank you to Gary and Sylvia Muller, proprietors of the Mill House Inn. They were very affected by the tragedy on 9/11 and thought long and hard about what they could do for the rescue workers at the WTC site.

As a complimentary gift to rescue workers, we were allowed to stay at their Inn for two days for much rest and relaxation. Along with the gift were two complimentary dinners. One at Della Femina's and the other at The Laundry.

I cannot begin to express my sincerest thanks to Gary and Silvia, as well as the staff and the owners of Della Femina's and The Laundry for such a very thoughtful and generous gift. My wife and I had a fabulous stay, much rest and two very delicious dinners.

It is their kind, considerate way that really made us feel, as well as many other rescue workers, appreciated, loved and welcomed.

We thank them from the bottom of our hearts and wish them all the very best.

Bill and Lisa Lutz
NYPD Emergency Service Unit

MAYOR JOE NEWS FLASH: STILL NO FANS

Dear Dan,

I was born and raised in Eastport, worked at the diner in Hampton Bays and Holiday Grill in Southampton (68-72) for about 5 years, married a gal from Hampton Bays, and my children live there with their kids. I have been reading your paper since then. I follow it online, as I now live in the Seattle area. The whole point of this is to tell you to keep riding that mayor of Southampton. It appears he is stuck on the "high side of the tracks" and has forgotten where his "off season" bread is buttered. I have followed this story on Mr. Serran-Pagan with great interest. Just goes to show you how all the real people who make life grand are kicked to the curb, because he thinks he can make up laws as he floats through office.

It would be grand to see him held personally responsible for the lawsuit which is sure to be won by Mr. Serran-Pagan. Looking forward to more heavy reading on this. Keep digging Dan, and keep us informed!

Bill Rankin
Via e-mail

I've been following this story with interest, too.

-D.R.

YOU JUST CAN'T REPLACE GRACE

Dear Dan,

I am very sorry to see Grace's go. I lived around the corner from her original stand and then the restaurant for over twenty years. I saw the diner turn into a sports bar and then the hideous catering hall that it is now. I was also there before 7-11 and McDonalds. Because of all this, I fled LI to Pa. Now, King Kullen and strip stores! Good-bye forever to the Manorville I knew and loved. But getting back to Grace's. When she opened her new restaurant, she still was a Manorville resident that cared about the community.

She allowed the Manorville Humane Society to set up tables on her little lawn and sell pet related items every Sunday in the summers. We were able to do much humane education and make money from sales of our pet items to fund our many programs. We also had many kind and responsible people adopt the terrific animals in our foster care. We even had one young man buy a few small items and tell us to keep the change from his $100.00 dollar bill for a donation! Then he drove off in a red Lamborghini! I wished he had adopted me!

Grace was not just a person who got a kick out of the many celebrities that frequented her restaurant. She was a vital member of the Manorville community and employed many young kids looking for their first jobs. Even my son spent some time sorting and cutting those "famous" hot dogs as his first job.

My best wishes to Grace and her hubby in their retirement. She sure has earned it! And good luck to her daughter, (who loved to cuddle our kittens for adoption), in her new endeavor!

Jennifer Lysogorski
Via e-mail

Grace's leaves the scene, and in about two years Grace's returns to the scene.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

SEATUCK PRESS RELEASE

"OUR RESIDENT BIRDS" FAMILY NATURE PROGRAM

Date of Program: Saturday, March 16, 2002

Time: 10:00 to 11:30 p.m.

Place: Morton National Wildlife Refuge, Sag Harbor

For: Families Fee: FREE

Not all birds fly south for winter. Join the Seatuck Environmental Association for a leisurely hike at an incredible outdoor setting where the resident birds come out to greet the public.

The chickadees, titmice and nuthatches of Morton will provide for a truly unforgettable visit to this great National Wildlife Refuge.

Please meet in the refuge parking lot.

For reservations and directions call: SEA at (631) 581-6900

Lori's World

Explore your imagination in "Lori's World". Paintings that transcend you into a world of gardens and waters filled with colors found only in your dreams. Each image invites us to dance with the flowers or swim with the fish into places unknown to the conscious mind.

Lori Crimmins, the artist and creator of "Lori's World", will be exhibiting her collection March 2-31 at The Rogers Memorial Library Gallery, 91 Coopers Farm Road,, Southampton NY

St. Jude Novena

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. St. Jude, Worker of Miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, Help of the Hopeless, pray for us.

Say prayer nine times a day; by the 8th day prayer will be answered. Say it for nine days. It has never been known to fail.

Publication must be promised. Thank you St. Jude.
